Wait Till U See What's Next!

Underneath you it swirls! Fast and strong through the crushing sea, you glance around at an otherwise tranquil sight. One look toward the stern convinces you: Everything you have done up to this point matters. You prepare yourself. You head onward--you have no other real choice. Then out of the surrounding depths it appears. It merges from the wetness and a feeling of hopelessness overwhelms you. Its long body dredges up out of the sea, piece by piece, until it reaches its absolute pinnacle. Then, as if gravity robbed the creature of all its options, it falls back into the depths. The waves smash at your ship with the force of a hurricane. But it wasn't a whale or a prehistoric sea monster you saw; no, you saw the future.

The future, that ugly creature that has been spying on you throughout your high school voyage, can be as comforting as your best friend, or it can be as horrid as your worst fear. You have no other choice but to accept it as it comes. All those telephones and televisions that litter your classrooms are trying to tell you something: They're letting you know that there is a bigger splash on the way--a deluge that may throw your ship completely off course.

Your vessel better be a strong one, for you can't survive if you don't have what it takes. The omnipotent sea will swallow your boat and you will become just another statistic.

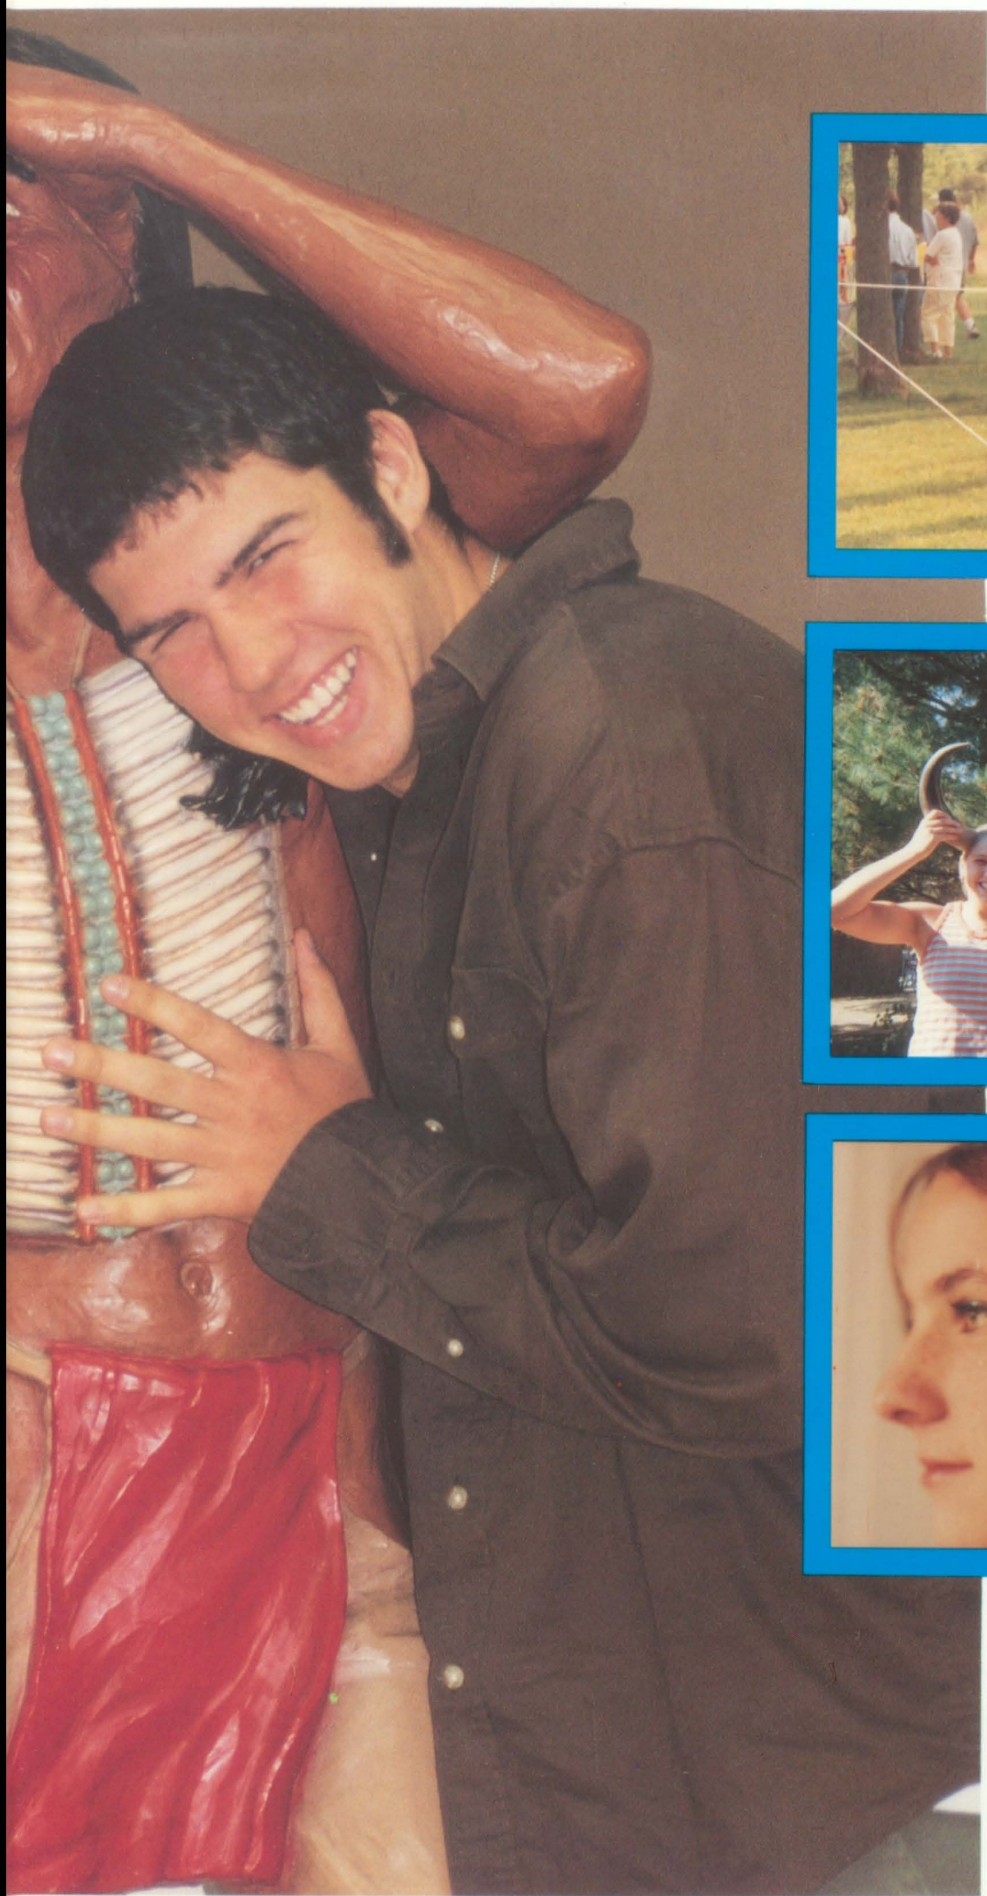

The future's not too difficult to predict. Technology has e-mailed the present and informed us of its arrival. It has faxed, paged, and called us up on its cellphone. You're paralyzed; you think this is the end, but just wait...

It's almost here, but Wait Till U See What's Next!

u SUMMER LOVIN

ndulating waves of heat... what we craved most from Spring Break forward through the first week of June. Just thinking of all those sweltering pool parties and juicy cookouts—last ditch efforts to make and retain high school memories for many of us—kept our minds in sweet frenzy. Surely this would be the summer of our dreams, the summer that the sun would burn off all signs of cloud cover and send us all scurrying for the only sane way to stay cool... the beach.

Just how hot did summer get? Despite the television weather programs telling us that the last five years were the warmest ever, no one could have proved that fact in the Tri-City area. Did that stop our summer fun?

No matter what, summer offered up memories for the taking... and for the making. Teachers helped by volunteering their time to accompany students to foreign lands. "This past summer was one of the best summers of my life. I really enjoyed going to Europe with Mr. Clark and Mr. McGrath and hanging out with my buds," said senior Beth Hendricks.

Back to work and back into the swing, teachers enjoyed an extra bonus their first day back, when student council members volunteered to wash their cars. No, it wasn't a money making activity, just something nice. "Teachers and other staff members often go unthanked for the time and dedication they give to the students. The car wash was a way of thanking these people for their work," said Kristen Szewcyk, 11.

For some it was a summer never to be forgotten. "It was the first summer that I could drive! I spent my time roaming around without a care in the world," said Chi Nyguyen, 12.

Even school made summer life special. "I had the greatest summer! I spent my time with my friends in summer school and marching band," said Leah Olenik.

A summer filled with warnings—don't go near the beach, don't go in the water—just couldn't overcome the call of the great outdoors, Region style. "Despite the warnings about bacteria-infested water, we still swam, played volleyball and enjoyed a bonfire," said Melissa Marnell, 12. Sometimes young people chose to defy warnings and just wait and see.

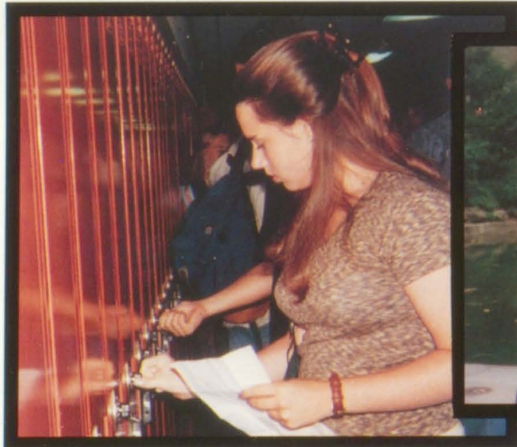

Future recruits? Not exactly. These upperclassmen enjoy a Fourth of July parade.

NEVER A DULL MOMENT

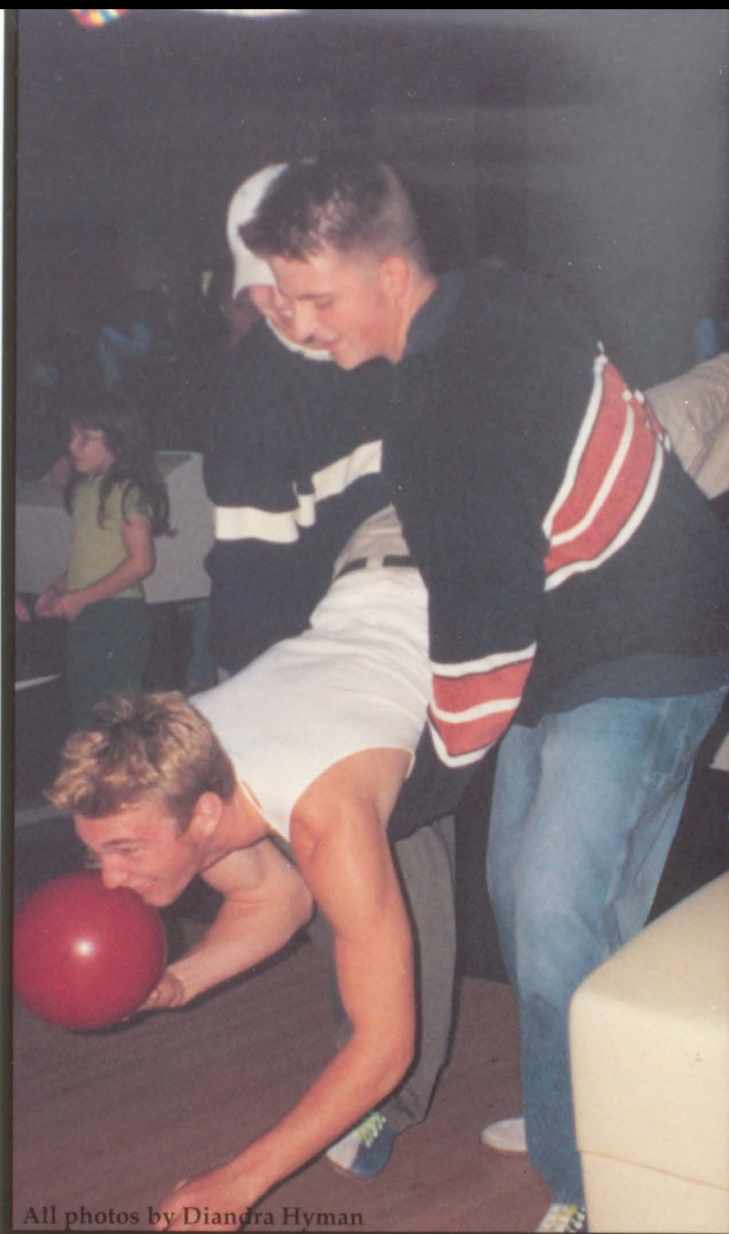

Uttering five, four, three, two, one; the 2:05 bell has finally rung and suddenly students spring to life and bolt to their cars. School is in a distant part of their memories and having fun is the main thing on their minds. Students look to all different sources to relieve the stress from the school day.

Plaza Lanes bowling alley put an exciting twist on the average bowling game. Flashing lights and music filled the area as students discovered new ways to spice up an old game. Local restaurants offered a stress-free environment for students looking for good food and a good time. Some seniors took advantage of Jalapeño's atmosphere to celebrate the conclusion of their last term papers.

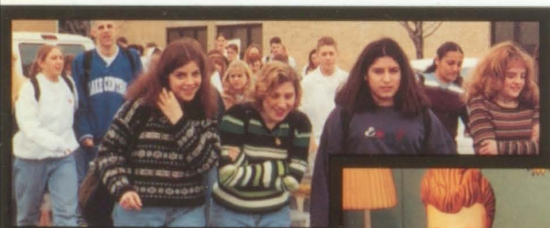

Often students did not have to look to an outside source for excitement. Student Council brought a little fun back to school by sponsoring a Halloween Dress-Up Day. Everything from cows to calculators appeared in the halls that day. Students were bustling with excitement to see how their classmates dressed.

Some excitement at school went unplanned. On a freezing cold day in January, students evacuated the building because of a bomb threat. Students huddled close together or piled into cars to keep warm. It offered break from classes, but the weather was too cold for students to enjoy their free time. Just as students were hoping that they would be able to go home, a voiced boomed over the intercom, "Students may return to the building." Oh well, excitement can't last forever.

Excitement surrounded LC students whether they were in school or out of school. They could confidently say, "There is never a dull moment," for they always contemplated what on earth could happen next.

GETTING A LIFE

Underlying the customary school pressures was always the thought, "If only I can last until the weekend!" Just to avoid that clanging alarm, to know that a little more sleep-- or a lot--was a distinct possibility, to attend to daily rituals without the interruption of bells and announcements: what a delight!

Yes, weekends proved just as anticipated by teens as to working adults. Social calendars for even the most ordinary of weekends usually began to fill around Wednesday. By Thursday the anticipation could build to a fevered pitch. Chatter during passing periods offered three questions: When? Where? Who will be throwing the big party this weekend?

Teen parties varied from the notorious 3-P parties, a.k.a. parents-pop-pizza, to the more lavish, extravaganzas thrown at rented sites. Although many moaned for invitation to the lavish, no one turned down the 3-P invite either. "The 3-P parties can occasionally still be fun," admitted junior Nick Petralia, "as long as there is a bunch of Mountain Dew and wrestling fans."

Get-togethers were so popular that many were school-related, though only the friendly faces attending connected the antics to school. Pasta parties allowed athletes to chow down on as many carbohydrates as possible the night before the big meet or game. Such parties were traditional rituals for runners and football players. Pasta parties have been common for several years, but this year offered some big time pasta parties for sports such as soccer.

Soccer girls enjoyed dancing for hours after chowing, while cross-country team members performed relaxation drills, and the football team played play station while shaving sophomore heads. Senior Ryan Lindinger said, "I will always remember my party because I had all the guys come out and all the ladies showed up."

All too soon the delicious food, the close camaraderie, and the memorable antics were gone, and another 7:30 bell was sounding. But often before the end of school on Monday, those three magic words were rumbling through the halls again. When? Where? Who was having the next party? Oh, just wait till you see what's next!

Juniors Becky Sheridan, Lori Moore, Greg Kleis, and Sean Gallagher gather to celebrate their soccer success in their own unique way.

Seniors Becky Eldrige, Megan Kozanda and Rhane Rhodes prove that having a good time does not require leaving your house.

AN ENCHANTED EVENING

Under the bright stars that lay in the sky, the students of LC were surrounded by a medieval aura. LC students entered the dance with hopes of romance, fun, and an unforgettable evening. It was an evening to be filled with memories to last the students a lifetime.

The dedicated and hardworking members of N-Teens proved themselves successful once again by sponsoring Winter Formal and making it an evening to remember. The N-Teens worked around the theme of medieval times and titled the dance "An Enchanted Evening." They decorated the Serbian Social Center in replicas of castles and gave the students the impression they were celebrating the evening high in a medieval castle. N-Teens also decorated the trees with sparkling white lights to imitate a moonlight sky.

Senior Stephanie Yednak was crowned queen and met an unusual circumstance not usually seen at LC's Winter Formal. Kevin Spicer, 12, was crowned the first king of Winter Formal because of his dedication to the club and all of his hard work to make formal turn out a success. Stephanie Yednak was very excited to be named Formal Queen, "I loved my heart-shaped cubic zirconia crown. I only wish I could have worn the crown that I made. Ha, ha, Gunty, I beat you." The first Formal King ever, Kevin Spicer, expressed his excitement as, "A totally unexpected surprise. It was a one time experience, and I'll never forget it."

Many LC students left the dance still entranced with the other world. After the dance many students chose to go out to dinner or finished the remainder of the evening with friends. No matter what students did after the dance, LC was sure to have an evening full of enchantment.

STAYIN' ALIVE

Homecoming 1997... Saturday Night Fever

nder pressure is what the student council felt to ensure the students a memorable Homecoming weekend. From day one of the new school year, the countdown to Homecoming was three weeks to get all the necessary preparations underway for the much-anticipated week. With the help of Homecoming chairman, Nikki Bond, 12, and the rest of the Homecoming committee, LC students were able to enjoy an unforgettable week.

The week and the events were themed around the John Travolta movie classic, "Saturday Night Fever." Both the students and staff participated in the daily events that led to the main events of the weekend. All of LC was sparkling in the attire of the seventies.

With much effort and determination, student council was able to conduct the first pep rally LC has seen for a long while. The pep rally took place Thursday, the day before the game. The rally was held in the gym and ended up being a huge hit among all those LC students who attended the rally. The student council is planning to start a new tradition during Homecoming week by continuing to have pep rallies and possibly hopes for a bonfire. Although LC lost a hard fought game to long time rivals Andean, the dance remained to be anticipated by all students who were attending.

The dance, itself, proved to be the biggest hit of the weekend. With the disco-posed replica's on the wall, purple and silver balloons hanging from the ceiling, and silver stars sparkling from the top, LC was set to "disco" the night away. The ticket sales exceeded the intended amount of 1,000 by one to allow Homecoming's King and Queen, Eric Stenberg and Lana Ilijevski, to come to the dance. The cafeteria was tightly packed with 1001 students dancing until the music stopped.

"Saturday Night Fever" proved to be a memorable week by all who participated in the events. With the excitement of the pep rally and exceeding ticket sales, this year's Homecoming gave the seniors more high school memories to cherish and gave the remainder of LC something to look forward to in the upcoming years.

BLIZZARD SHUTS DOWN REGION

Unsurpassed in the lifetime of LC students, the blizzard of 1998 swept through northern Indiana during the early morning hours of Monday, March 9, left little doubt that Mother Nature could still be the boss. Waiting anxiously beside radios, most students and staff did hear the magic words, "No school!" before losing power.

The 60-mile-per-hour winds continued, packing in ice and snow throughout all subdivisions. For thousands, having no power left little doubt that schools would remain closed. Teens spent most of their time building snowmen, sledding and having snowball fights and even earning a few bucks cleaning drives. Brian LaFreniere, 11, said, "I went sledding with a group of buddies and tried to cause a little trouble."

All those icy fingers experienced some agony trying to thaw out-no heat! Amanda Shepherd, 11, said, "I stayed by our fireplace all week, because we didn't have our heat."

For teens and their parents, frustration grew as the long hours without power lengthened into unsure promises. While some subdivision were powerless until Friday others never lost power. Twins Emily and Carrie Yannuzzi, 10, agreed: Luckily we celebrated our birthday on Sunday, because the birthday present to us on Monday was no power." Students found friends to stay with through the blizzard's aftermath.

LC's fieldhouse offered a warming shelter with some 300 people taking advantage of its shelter. Showers could be taken while still staying warm. April Brumm, 10, said, "Since we didn't have any warm water, my mom and I had to come to school and take showers." The effects of the blizzard were far-reaching-including extending the school year until June 10 to make up four of the five days missed.

JUST HAVIN' FUN

Unreputedly, school work took a far second to good times during school breaks. Students seized every opportunity to enjoy spending time together and just having a blast.

Many students opted to have fun during classtime. Jake Kapitan, 10, said, "I had fun putting Derek Goins in the torture rack in science class."

Others enjoyed themselves participating in extra-curricular activities. Sara Nitz, 11, had fun "Putting mud all over Kent Wells for his role as Pig Pen in 'Charlie Brown,' and being able to drive, learning sign language from Linda Laskey, and my drama class was fun every day! Also, being on the announcements and meeting new friends!"

Best friends relished having fun together. John Talaber, 10, said, "I had fun beating up Spencer Sunde the whole year!"

At the end of the year, students recollected fun times. Erin Ordway, 10, said, "My best memory of having fun this year was proving to my friend Glenn Laski that I can kick his butt!"

Some students made the most of the week off of school from the snow storm. "During the spring blizzard, my friends and I were at first told that there was a 2-hour delay, so we started building a snowman. At the end of the two hours, it was eight feet tall. We couldn't even touch the top of the head. People would stop and stare when they drove by. Then we found out school was canceled! Fiesta Bowl was fun, too!" said Jenn Wangerin, 10

Beth Barno, 10, summed up LCs feelings on fun. "Any situation can be fun if you're willing to act like an idiot!"

GET YOUR ACT TOGETHER

U hear the sound of drums beating, people singing, and the audience clapping. No, this is not Star Search; it's the first annual Student Council talent show. For only $3 students witnessed the amazing and often hidden talents of their classmates.

Variety was the best way to describe the show's content. There was everything from gymnastics to classical piano playing and staged wrestling, bringing the excitement of the "Royal Rumble" to the Freshmen LGI. Bodies went flying off the stage while the audience cheered for their favorite wrestler.

Nick Werth, 11 and the LC drum line

Wrestler Rob Clark, 11, emerged as the winner. Watch out NWO! The show also included performances from the bands Life Drop, Organ Grinder, and Tish, which displayed their skill for playing the drums. Nick Werth, 11, of Tish showed off his amazing talent when he broke into a drum solo in the middle of the performance.

Although it was difficult to judge the diverse talents, the four student and four adult judges managed to pick a winner. Members of the school drumline performed together and took first place. Jeremy Willett, 12, won second place for a piano piece he composed. Stephen Dimos, 11, playing a piano piece by Chopin, and Daniel Hicks, 10, performing gymnastics, tied for third. The first-place winner split the ticket sales with Student Council, who donated $315 to Riley Children's Hospital, a hospital officially recognized student councils must support. Second place received Applebee's gift certificates and third place received Show Place movie passes.

Students proved they could get their act together and leave the audience anticipating what would be next.

MY HEART WILL GO ON

Under your tuxedo covering that body you've worked so hard to maintain and that dress disguising much of your expensive tan, you make your way to the Prom. Of course, you can't go to this dance in just your broken down Chrysler, or your parents' Camaro. Not classy you. It's limo time and the bigger the better.

Prom, which was held at the Serbian Center in Lansing, Il, took place on May 1 and will be a day remembered by most forever. Whether it was your date, the dance, or the time you had afterwards, it was a difficult night for boredom to grip its ugly claws into.

"My heart will go on," was the theme of the night and many couples went right on with the dancing and singing. "I had a good time," said Chi Nguyen, 12, "The music wasn't the greatest, but I still had a great time"

Because Prom's price tag was quite high, many students decided that a limo wasn't necessary. Some juniors and seniors actually took the bus. They organized a group of people to take a coach bus to Prom and Chicago afterwards.

Chi-town is the most popular place to go afterwards. Most couples go to get some of that Windy City cuisine after a long night of dancing. "No matter how many times I go to Chicago, I still am in awe of the city. I never get bored out there," Neil Hanson, 11, said.

But Prom is not merely a one day event. The whole weekend and even the Monday afterwards are dedicated to this occasion. "We went to Turkey Run the next day and had a blast. Most people go to Great America, but we decided to go hiking," said Junior Julie Mullins.

Perhaps the ton of pictures you took will help you remember that special night, when everybody got along and had fun. Prom was not just a dance, but it was also a celebration. After all, it's the end of the year.

SENIOR FIESTA

With graduation barely a month away, the majority of seniors were cracking down on their schoolwork and making sure they had perfect attendance. So of course, Senior Banquet (a.k.a.: Senior Fiesta) provided a much needed reprieve from the difficulties of second semester. Either that or the seniors really knew how to party with a Chihuahua. Whatever the reason, Senior Fiesta, held April 17 at the Villa Ceasare in Schererville, was one of the most memorable events of high school.

The banquet started with a buffet of assorted Mexican cuisine, all of the finer foods in a buffet style: nachos, tacos, and ice cream; also a separate table was set for nachos and all the fixings. "I liked the rice, I ate mine and Fred's and started on the next table, but they fought me for it," Leanne Kuhlmann.

After dinner, during the senior awards, the biggest and most shocking events occurred. Poor, innocent Bill Schaaf accidentally tripped while merely trying to receive his award as class clown. Those forks he carried in his pocket scattered everywhere and his obvious humiliation shined through. In the biggest upset in senior award history, Kelly Komara stole the Best Female Athlete award. It was reported that she considers this award more prestigious than "Miss Basketball." Rumor also has it Rob Kotarski, Biggest Mooch, was wearing a borrowed shirt to receive his award, and Worst Driver, Barry Swisher will proudly display his award in his car window, with hopes of scaring off fellow road warriors. It's a fair warning; be afraid, be very afraid.

After the ceremony, the dancing began. The Mariachi band didn't show, so the seniors had to rely on the tunes played by DJ, Entertainment Express to show off their best moves. With a combination of sombreros and colorful balloon arrangements, the seniors were in the mood for some serious fun. Almost everyone got out on the dance floor to show off their stuff, and a good time was had by all, or at least they pretended really well, so that counts too.

TWELVE YEARS GONE...

JUST LIKE THAT

United for one last time, the Class of 1998 sat as one under the roof of the Radisson Star Plaza Theater on June 4. Students were ready to greet each other and share memories together for one final time as a whole. Emotions spread through all of the graduates as they listened to the speeches from Valedictorian Chris Stavitzke and Salutatorian Joi Bonaguro. Both reminded everybody in their own unique way to enjoy life and pursue what they knew to be right in their hearts.

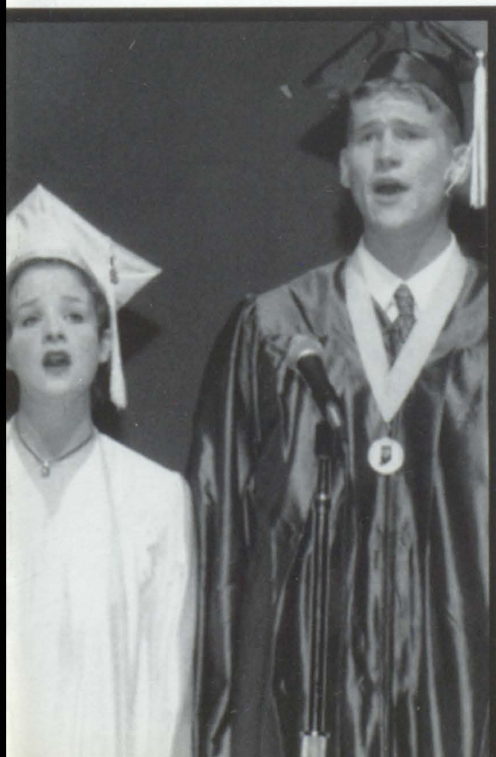

Of course, the Commencement ceremony was kept short, as the class vice-president, Kevin Spicer, reminded the School Board that it was a school night for the graduating class. The class gifts of a clock for the gym and benches for the courtyard were presented to Principal Linda Yonke. Shortly after the presentation, the LC Counterpoints sang "Bridge Over Troubled Water." The song reminded everyone present that they would always have a friend nearby.

It was then finally time to distribute the diplomas to the 558 graduates. Students walked across the stage proudly as they accepted their diplomas. A great feeling of triumph ran through all of the graduates. As the ceremony concluded, everyone was reminded to cherish the yesterdays, live the todays, and dream the tomorrows. Finally, the graduates walked up the aisle, received their congratulations from family and friends, and prepared to start a new chapter in their lives.

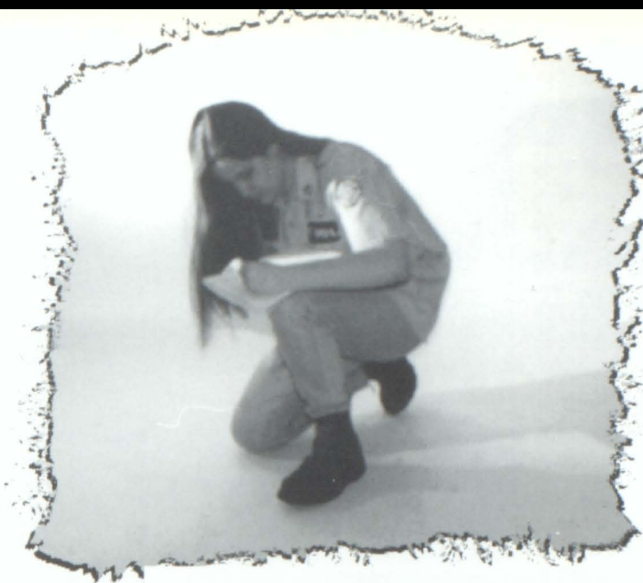

Counterpoints Jeremy Kiger, Megan Jones, and Neill Osika sing together one final time. The Counterpoints interpretation of "Bridge Over Troubled Water" proved to be the most emotional part of the night.

Finally the time has come. Katie Dywan and the other Suma Cum Laudes lead the Class of 1998 into the theater. This is the one day that many anticipated since first grade.

PAINTING THE BIG PICTURE

Uncharacteristic ability inspired gifted artisans toward perfection. While friends toiled away with scientific formulas and math theorems, artists painted, sculpted, molded, and sought to offer their end products in an ever new view.

Students were offered a variety of courses to further study this type of expression. Students could mold themselves into ceramics, add a personal touch to crafts and jewelry, and learn the basics in art, offered every year.

Each student added a touch of his own personal style to the school with LC benefiting from students' large paintings lining the hallways. Painted courtyard walls served as a backdrop to modern school life, and the pottery and jewelry displayed in the foyer cabinets captured the interest of LC visitors.

Students created modern art with the help of computers. Artists were encouraged this year to take art to the final frontier and capture new age masterpieces with technology. Teachers and students looked forward to upcoming computer graphics courses. Both hoped for more computers and room to make this dream come true.

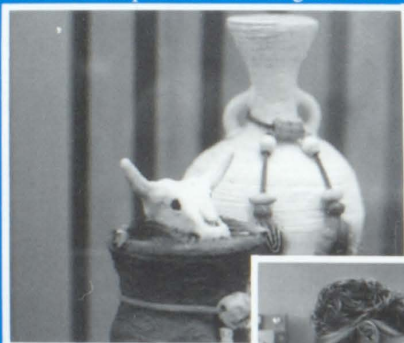

February was Youth Art Month throughout the nation. LC students participated by entering ideas for a billboard to be placed along Route 41. After more than 150 applications were submitted, art teachers chose eight designs. LC staff and art club members picked the final winner. Once chosen, art club worked on painting the winning design big enough to fit a billboard piece by piece in the art room. The final product — a representative piece of art from LC displayed to the world. Not a bad way to celebrate Youth Art Month, huh?

Art students added beauty and inspiration to LC, both inside and outside. From the halls lined with paintings to the highway colored with talent, art students contributed importance and elegance to the otherwise monotonous schooldays.

PRACTICED SOUNDS

Unforgettably, LC choirs showcased their talent through varied but harmonizing sounds.

The bell choirs delighted many with their playing. Both choirs performed difficult pieces with ease. They traveled to perform across the area; extensive practicing helped them to perfect their style.

Junior Treble and Varsity Choir helped students to improve both their voices and technique. These early choirs developed a foundation of music for the students. Students learned to read music and developed an understanding of theory. Sophomore Demetrius Welch said, "It (choir) was a great experience. It was a definite motivator. It was like a really big family."

Senior Treble and Concert Choir let students express themselves on a higher level. These advanced students excelled greatly among their peers and shone in the spotlight. The opportunities given to students in these choirs allowed them to grow as individuals and as a whole.

Both Trebelaires and Counterpoints spread happiness throughout the community. Their excellent showmanship and extraordinary talent made them sparkle in a crowd. Extensive practicing after school and many performances brought them together as a family.

Directors Mr. Lewis and Mrs. Hobbs encouraged growth and advancement in all of the choirs. Once again, the musicians in LC choirs helped each other and really stood out in the community.

Kevin Sherman, 12, practices his music for the choir concert. Band and choir combined to perform in this concert. Both groups enjoy this holiday treat.

Concert Choir Singers rehearse for the winter concert. Concert choir performances were filled with great music, choreography, and talented vocalists.

BAND MARCHES ON

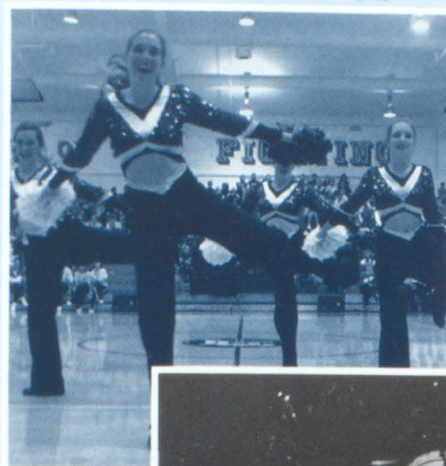

Unstoppable, the Tribe of Pride marched to the beat of a different drum as new director Mr. Malik joined the award-winning band during their summer practices at band camp. Rob Vega, 11, said, "Losing our past band director was hard, but we gained a new director who is both serious and has a sense of humor."

The band's hard labor at camp was soon forgotten as they started out onto their roadtrips. "My favorite trip was when we went to the Fiesta Bowl in Phoenix, Arizona," said Vega.

Malik's new style of teaching and directing expanded the Tribe's knowledge and understanding of their abilities. The Concert and Symphonic Bands, as well as the Wind and Percussion Ensembles also worked with the change. Overall, band members enhanced their knowledge of music through Malik's arrival. "Malik is a good band director. We have all learned a lot through him," said Adam Niebling, 11.

The percussionists cautiously watch their director in hopes of impressing the middle school students. The audience watched in amazement as the performance took place.

The LC marching band eagerly awaits their turn to perform for next year's incoming freshmen.

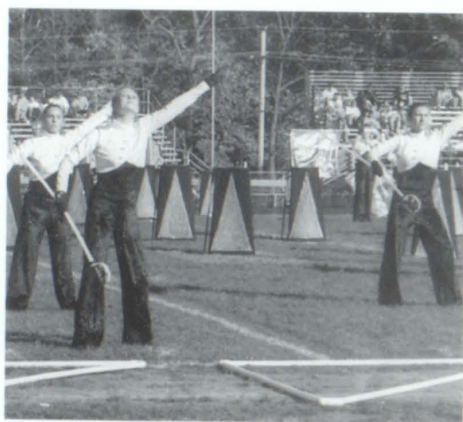

Traveling Troupes

Umpteen competitions came and went for LC's marching band. Afterward, the Tribe of Pride traveled to Arizona to compete against marching bands nationwide.

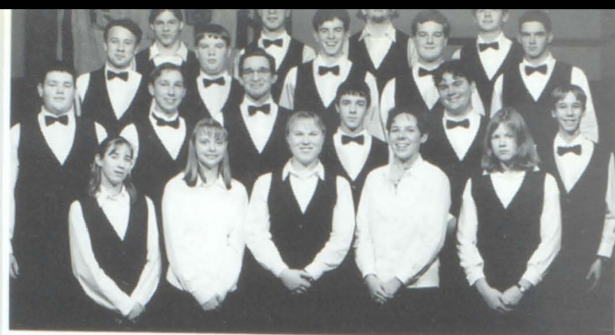

The Tribe of Pride placed well at their Fiesta Bowl competitions. For the field show, the Tribe of Pride placed sixth overall. The percussion received an outstanding second place rating. In the Fiesta Bowl Parade, the Tribe of Pride was second in its class and third overall. The Centralettes won the competition against other nationwide colorguards. LC's marching was also placed top of all competing bands.

LC choir also performed well at the regional and state Indiana State School Music Association (ISSMA) competitions. Vocalists and pianists traveled to perform and compete against themselves at this January competition. Top musicians were given the chance to travel to the competition at a state level. The choirs also traveled to St. Louis, Missouri. The choirs gained experience and poise from these experiences.

Centralettes perform with the band on the football field. The use of sabers, flags, rifles, and large shapes adds visual effects to the band's music.

AMERICA'S SINGING

Undoubtedly, "Working," the spring musical, centered on the American dream. Students learned to appreciate their lives and enjoy every experience while they worked together to teach these same lessons.

The play included life stories set to music.

Characters sung ballads about their lives and their lost dreams. While some actors made the audience laugh, others brought tears to every eye. Their great emotional acting and singing truly moved the heart.

The music in the production was varied and heart wrenching. The orchestra, directed by Ms. Hobbs, practiced with the Thesbians. Together, they perfected the mood and sound of the total music production.

The tech crew started working on the set after the freshman show closed in mid-February. With less time than in previous years, they dedicated their skills to building the set in only a few weekends. When the set was finished, the techies moved on to work sound, lights, and props.

This American dream ended the thirty-second season of LC theatre. Saying good-bye is never easy, and theatre members learned this difficultly. With seniors leaving, and others going away, the year ended in a tearful closing. Some students found relief in knowing that the summer play was just around the corner. But some friends would never be back to sing and dance with them again.

Actors listen to critique after rehearsing a song. The songs in "Working" talk about life, dreams, and goals.

Sophomores Mary Boba, Anne Wartman and Sara Jacewicz practice singing with the rest of the cast. Vocal rehearsals were included to perfect pitches and tempos in the musical.

Cast members act on an elaborate set. Climbing flights of stairs, ramps, and narrow bridges requires agility and balance along with physical endurance.

Nicki Mackowski, 10, paints the eight-foot-high platforms. Hours of hard work planning, building, and painting were dedicated to create an awesome set. Platforms bridged the entire stage; scaffolding and huge ladders added to the overall effect.

uCHECK MATE

Underneath the moonlit sky, Lake Central Theatre Guild (LCTG) was hard at work. During the summer they presented "Chess," a heart-capturing musical drama, and "The Foreigner," a straight play depicting the fun times and hardships in the deep South. In addition, directors Mr. Paul and Mrs. Angie Lowe worked on two one-act plays in a little community theatre in Valparaiso. LC students helped with all of these plays.

Students started working on the summer plays before school ended in June. Clean-up from "Once Upon A Mattress" was first on the agenda. After disassembling all sets built a few months earlier, they then started building for the Valparaiso plays and "Chess." A huge chess board was reconstructed onto the stage. Several students added lights under the chess board to add the awesome glowing effect at the end of the spectacular curtain call.

The incredible magnificence of the music enthused the actors to work long nights perfecting every number. Entertaining songs such as "One Night in Bangkok," "Merchandisers' Song," and "Arbiter's Song" proved excellent. Solos and duets also moved the actors as much as the audience. "Anthem," "Pity the Child," and "Nobody's Side" were high points in the play. The closing of the play brought tears to everyone's eyes, as another summer was ending. Hope came as talk of bringing back "Chess" in 1998 floated around the theatre.

LC students also helped with the backstage technical work of "The Foreigner." The set of the small southern hunting and fishing lodge was quaint and hospitable. The tech crew also added special effects of fog and lightning. LCTG worked as a family during the summer. Their talent and hard work proved to be an important part in creating wonderful memories.

LISA KOPERCINSKI, 12, and Ryan Nyby, 11, take a break from the long rehearsal. Working together made memories for the theatre members.

Tricia Sullivan, Lake Central employee and mother, helps out with theatre costumes, rehearsals, and performances. She has dedicated her time for the last 21 years. She has been awarded an LCTG jacket and ring. She actively participates in theatre, including onstage performances. Thanks goes to Mrs. Sullivan for caring about the futures of young people.

u GOOD GRIEF!

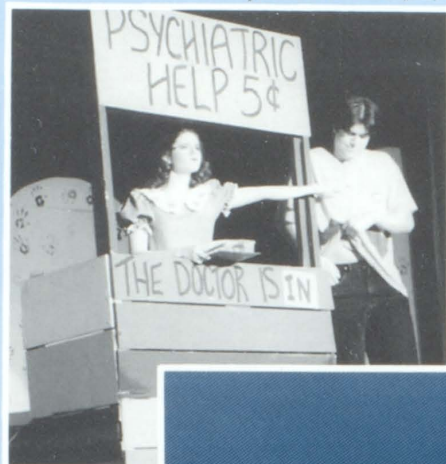

sually when you think of peanuts, you don't think of theatre, but the Lake Central Theatre Guild (LCTG) gave new meaning to this delight by producing "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" and bringing the Peanuts characters to life.

Through short skits the "Charlie Brown" cast showed how kids act and what they think. Charlie Brown (sophomore Jack Amdt) showed his insecurities and his secret crush for the red-haired girl played by sophomore Renee Lesniewski. Meanwhile, Lucy Van Pelt, (senior Jenise McAleer) showed her controlling ways and undying affection for the Beethoven fanatic Schroeder (Jon Miller, 12). Paul Felus, 10, played Linus, the blanket-loving younger brother of Lucy. Ryan Nyby, 11, played Peppermint Patty, the typical tomboy who had a crush on Charlie Brown. Talk about a soap opera for young kids! This show was full of secret loves and childhood deception, and wise cracks from the lovable, loyal Snoopy (senior B.J. Lesniewski).

The show was enhance by the hard backstage work of those loyal technicians (a.k.a. "techies"), who turned the stage into a jungle gym. Complete with teeter totters, giant blocks, and huge ramps, this set was one the cast could play on to remind the audience that the best way to live life is through the eyes of a child.

Mike Bender, 9, Sam Graff, 9 and Erin Cerwinski, 9, go over their lines at a dress rehearsal after school. This kind of rehearsal takes place several times during the week before the play opens.

Freshmen Grace Haddix, Marlainia Geddes, Erin Hines, and Lindsey Babcock, look over their scripts during dress rehearsal. After working hard on performing their parts, they will get in costume.

Brandon Pubcoski, 9, and Sam Graff, 9, work on blocking their scenes. Both of these young actors dedicated much of their time and talent to the freshmen play by rehearsing many times after school and on their free time outside of school.

Tech members are an important part of a play. These hard working members work behind the scenes to further improve the play by decorating the backdrops, working with the lighting and many other complicated tasks. Junior Melissa Peronto and fellow tech members work many times during the duration of the play, including weekends.

FIRST TIME FRESHMEN

Undoubtedly, freshmen have been shunned by upperclassmen for decades. However, freshmen in the cast of "Mrs. Mc Thing" proved themselves to all by putting on the play without having helping hands from upperclassmen to guide them through. The Freshman Class brought along with it many talented actors who were able to put on the show without the slightest hesitation.

These novice actors gave their all in hopes to impress their audience. Jennie Bzdil, 9, became ill and was unable to play the role given to her. The part was taken over by Lindsay Babcock, 9. Although unable to play her own part, Bzdil still considered the experience as memorable. "The most memorable experience in this play was the fun I had with the cast. Everyone was so nice and they were a lot of fun to be with," said Bzdil.

Also among the cast were Andrew Ranich, 9, Mike Bender, 9 and Erin Cerwinski, 9. They, along with the rest of the cast, took over the show and captured the audience.

Natalie Muskin, 9, student director, said, "I knew that I wanted to be in theatre, and I figured it would be good to start out in the freshman play. I think the best part of the whole thing was when we finally performed. That's when it all paid off."

The cast members and the freshman tech members were impressing to the audience as well as the directors Mr. and Mrs. Lowe. Everyone concerned was proud of the show, and the huge success which it had been. LCTG member Gennivive Ryann, 11, said, "I think the freshmen did a really good job. We were all impressed with how well they handled things".

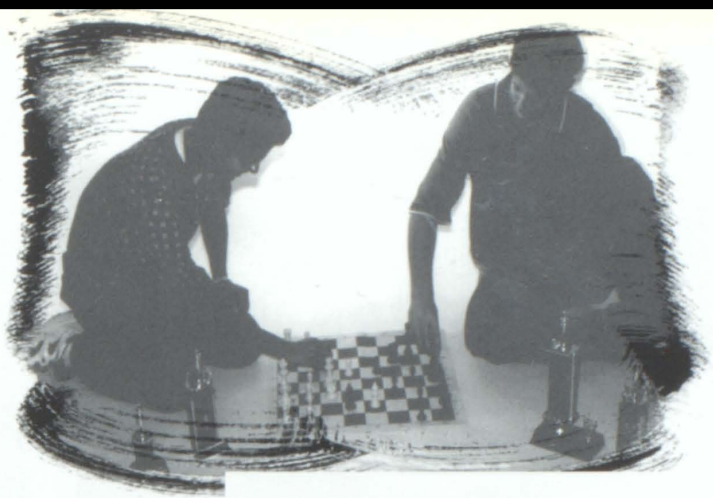

Often overlooked, freshmen sometimes faded into the background. However, the cast of "Mrs. McThing" proved that freshmen are worthy of the spotlight, and that they didn't always need upperclassmen to walk them through everything.

Dan Alderson, 9, discusses with Sam Graff, 9, Mike Bender, 9, and Andrew Ranich, 9, the scene of which they are practicing. After going over their lines numerous times, they work on setting up different blocking methods that they will use in the play once everything else has been finalized.

CLASS CABINETS AFFECT SCHOOL

Usually among the busiest at LC, class cabinets lived up to their expectations, knowing that planning was essential to pull off an enjoyable and successful year. Class cabinets had the unique distinction of having to earn the necessary money to fund the various activities that take place throughout the four years of high school.

Off to an early start on their high school careers, the Freshman Class Cabinet devised a new television program called Indian Insights. Devised by Mr. Ken Miller, who returned to LC as Freshmen Center principal, this half-hour presentation helped freshmen learn about the various individuals concerned with the school community. The Indian Insights program ran monthly, and Mr. Al Angel and Ms. Gunde Iwerson worked as sponsors.

The Sophomore Class, sponsored by Ms. Cynthia Dewes and Mr. Mark South, attempted a Christmas dance, which was soon canceled when ticket sales failed.

The Junior Class Cabinet worried through their year planning and funding the Prom, held at the Serbian Center in Lansing. Despite three years of worry about the funding, Prom was a huge success.

Senior Banquet and a head start on their future fifth-year reunion, Senior Class Cabinet also donated a clock for the gym, a bench for the courtyard, donation toward Ms. Kathy Arbuckle's painting, all future classes, and Dollars for Scholars.

ATHLETICS OFFERS BONDING

Unable to pray at school? Not so at LC. The Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) met every Wednesday morning at 6:30. "Everyone is welcome. You don't have to be an athlete to attend, just a Christian," said Mr. Tim Vassar, who served as the club's sponsor. About 30 members attended the weekly meetings, known fondly as "huddles." All high school grades were invited. Club members participated in several prayer activities, such as gathering to pray around the school's flag pole once during the fall semester and The National Day of Prayer.

Unity describes Athletic Letterwinners who were sponsored by Mr. Mike VanEaton. The officers were president Paul Vaughters, vice president Kelly Komara, secretary Kelly Kuhn, and treasurer Tom Bolda. The club consisted of any varsity athlete. They recieved chevrons and Indianhead letters. They sold entertainment books. They valet parked for the Chamber of Commerce at the Villa Caesare, and they valet parked for a doctor's office. The Athletic Letterwinners went to the elementary schools to help with the fit kid testing, not to mention that every Thursday the club went on outings with special education children. "This is a positive club that helps you stay fit," stated secretary Kelly Kuhn.

ACADEMIC LETTERWINNERS

Unanimous votes were had for Academic Letter Winners' new sponsor, Mr. David Harnish, who replaced Ms. Debbie Powers. Powers had resigned both her club sponsorship and teaching contract last spring.

Although in his first year as a teacher, Harnish dived in head first, tackling the sponsorship of such a large group. His efforts were appreciated. "He's the man," said sergeant of arms officer, David Costenaro, 12.

Experiencing more organization than in the past, their treasury coffers apparently didn't struggle as much as other organizations. Secretary Christie Bodnar, 12, said, "The Academic Letter Winners organization seems to be a wealthy club."

With more organization came several definite goals to a group that had done little in the past besides belong. One of their goals was to start a school-wide trivial pursuit game. "I think that would be rad," said Costenaro.

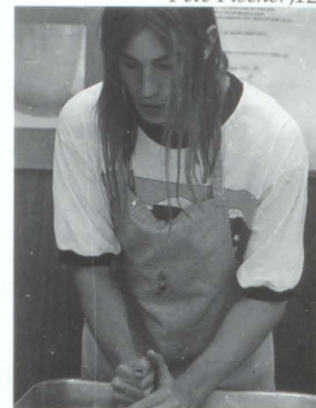

Academic Letter Winners started the year 120 members strong. To first become a member, students must have achieved a GPA of 3.90 or higher after the first semester. Numerals were issued upon the third semester's membership. Certificates were issued at other semester intervals.

RIGHT: Melinda Pratl, Mrs. Ionas, Julie Whiting, and Janelle Martin had a merry picnic at Indiana Dunes during an Enviromental Biology fieldtrip. It was said that the best part of the trip was "knowing that we're in the sun having fun while everyone else is in school."

Understanding academics, willingness to compete, and strong determination. The Academic Decathlon enveloped all of these characteristics and put them to use. The team sponsor, Ms. Penny Tokoly, said, "The team will be strong this year." A valid prediction, considering that they came away from state with three first place awards in interview, speech, and science. Three bronze, six silver, and three gold medals were awarded to individual members of the team.

The Varsity JETS competed in math. On March 3 they competed at Valparaiso University. Member Kristen Szewczyk said, "This competition was probably one of the most challenging things I have ever participated in. The tests made you use the knowledge you already had to solve real life problems, like water treatment and automotive problems."

The varsity team earned first place in division nine, which is the highest. The team sponsor, Mr. Zajicek, said, "I'm proud of them. They usually do quite well."

"We had a great time this year," said Mr. Tom Clark, sponsor of the Academic Superbowl. This club participated in math and S.E. Historians. Competition was in March. Their goal was to go all the way to state. "The past years we've come in fifth and second places. Now we are working hard to get a first place finish," said Clark.

Mr. McCaslin was the sponsor of the Hoosier Spellbowl. Every day, beginning in August, the club studied around 50 words. "We practice every day until the third week in October. The competition was held in Griffith," he said.

SPECIAL INTERESTS SPARK ACTIVITIES

Unified became the key word for the Dollars for Scholars program, as they worked together to achieve success. Dedicated to the purpose of granting financial aide to college-bound seniors, DFS raised money through planned fundraisers. "This year we had a fundraiser which was the T-shirt sale, and we raised money for scholarships," said Ms. Nancy Crooks, co-sponsor. Other money makers included the Bowl-a-thon, the 50/50 raffle, and the can-out.

"Every year this program grows more and more, and in return it helps a lot of students. It is one of the most beneficial things that helps students go to college," said co-sponsor, Mr. Tom Clark. Last year $23,350 was raised, and between $200 and $5,000 were donated toward helping students attend college. The 49 recipients completed written essays, maintained acceptable grades, and showed involvement in extra-curricular, work, and athletic activities.

"We raise a lot of money and help a lot of seniors, and we have so much fun doing it," said Melissa Peronto, 11, president.

The club also came up with fresh ideas for the spring. "I think this is a great club because it shows that you are involved and it shows you are interested in furthering your education. It is a great way to raise money for college," said Sarah Cohen, 11.

The Medical Professions Club (MPC) held the annual blood drive Feb. 12. "By running the blood drive, the MPC helps to provide blood to the community and it is really important because blood can not be made in labs," said sponsor, Ms. Kathy Ignas.

The Spirit Team kept busy making signs for games that would show school spirit. "They are very dedicated, hard workers," said Jodi Dillingham, sponsor.

TALENTED TONGUES

Unity brought students together in organizations, teams and foreign language clubs. Teachers and staff set time aside to sponsor Boys' and Girls' State, the speech team, and the German and Spanish clubs.

American Legion acted as sponsors for those nominated to Boys' and Girls' State, an honor giving students a chance to learn the skill of leadership and to understand the workings of government. "It is put together so the kids can have a common purpose," said school counselor and sponsor, Mr. John Kopchik. Teachers voted from a list of recommended students with a GPA of 3.0 or higher. Elected students would attend a week-long camp. "There, with other students from around the state, they form two political parties, have campaigns, and bond with new people," said Kopchik.

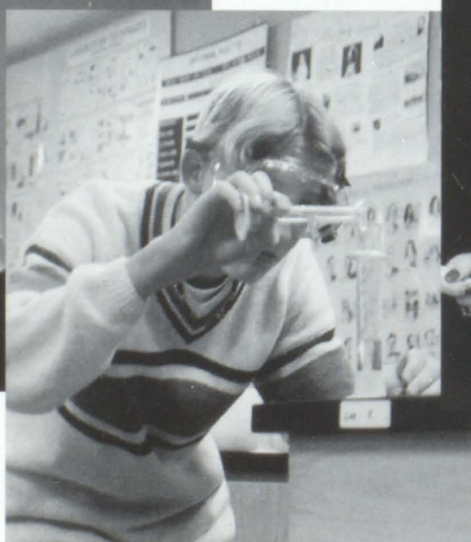

The speech team also offered rewards through competing in state-wide tournaments during the season, which began in October and ended with tournament finals in April. "The enjoyment that we experience as members of the speech team comes from a variety of sources: the sense of accomplishment that comes with successfully completing a difficult talk; the enjoyment felt as a result of simple competition; and the camaraderie we experience from our time together," said Mr. Ron Fredrick, speech team sponsor.

The German and Spanish clubs offered cultural diversity. German club met on club periods every month. To belong, students must have been enrolled in a German language class here at Lake Central. Mr. Mark South sponsored the club. "We've already participated in Red Ribbon week and taken a trip to Chicago to see the sights of Germantown," said Wally Vukadinovich, club president. The club actively gave food to a homeless shelter during the Christmas season. "We've had a great outcome of people this year. We've had so much fun," Vukadinovich said.

HONOR SOCIETY

Undeniably one of the most prestigious organizations available to high school students, the National Honor Society (NHS) offered a distinct type of involvement. Members were expected to excel in academics, but other factors were just as necessary. Having the required grades could not overcome the student who did not participate in school activities, and many were denied membership for this reason.

All teachers were provided with names of those students who maintained qualifying grades. After vigorous examinations by teachers looking for qualities such as scholarship, leadership, service, and remarkable character, students with GPAs of 3.33 or higher could finally be inducted into this prestigious organization limited to juniors and seniors.

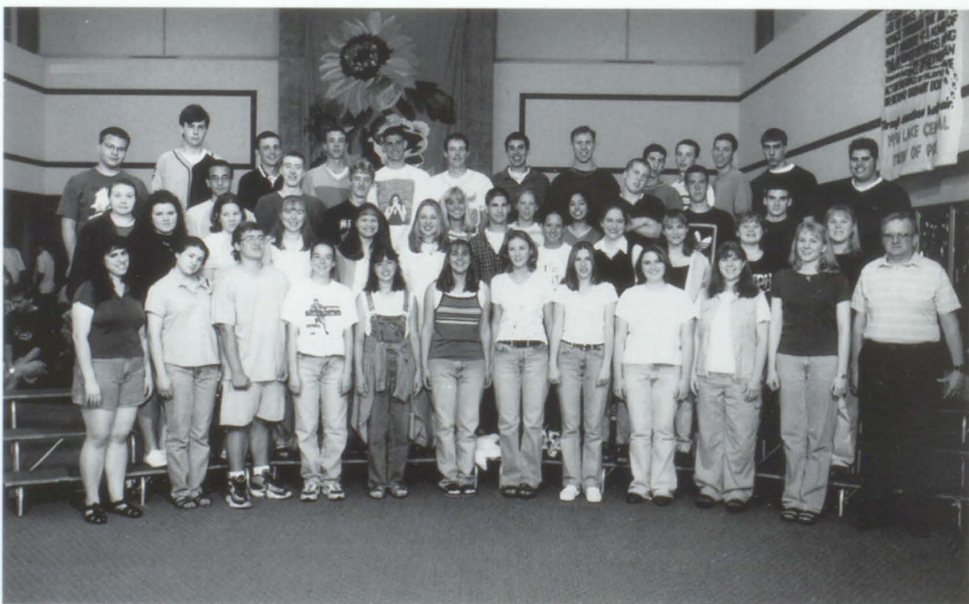

More than 100 students who possessed these necessary qualities worked together to help the community. Their hard work and effort gave them first-hand knowledge of how important social work remains to any community.

Four seniors, Diandra Hyman, Melissa Wychocki, Kevin Spicer, and Joi Bonaguro served as group leaders. Mr. Kerry Zajicek acted as sponsor. Officers were elected in the spring of 1997, giving officers time to contemplate events for their group. About 150 juniors were inducted at the end of the school year.

NHS offered continuing honor for determined students who enjoyed challenges. With induction and new elections during the spring, graduating members knew they could claim their membership throughout their lives. NHS had helped to create a stable foundation, allowing members a positive view as they would wait to see what would happen next.

Diandra Hyman, 12, and fellow NHS officers help with the induction of new members.

DISCOVER THE POSSIBILITIES

Quiver

Unsatisfactory results from past issues caused the Rune staff, which met after school, to look for options. Staff members and adviser, Ms. Shirley Hewlett, continued their struggle until early into the second semester. "It takes real effort to produce 80 or more pages to display the creative writing and artistic talents of LC students. It is also costly. Then most people simply want to look at it once--they don't want to buy it," said Hewlett. So, after having changed the publication's name to Dreamcatcher, the staff began publishing pages and distributing regularly with Scout. LC's bi-weekly student newspaper continued their strict adherence to deadlines throughout the year and maintained their reputation of being a spokesperson of the student body. Co-editors Katie Dywan and Tom Gubbins, seniors, aided a staff of 28 writers, photographers and page designers.

The Quiver staff, led by co-editors Diandra Hyman and Lisa Kopercinski, 12, faced a difficult year of computer breakdowns, attempting to produce the 300-page book on some of the original Macintosh computers. By second semester Ms. Hewlett's threat of producing pages via the good old-fashioned way had become a reality, and eventually six new Gateway computers arrived.

Two clubs whose purpose was scholastic competition spent months preparing for competition. Science Olympiad worked toward a successful regional competition. After achieving that goal, the team advanced to state in March. Cathy Tadey, president, said, "Science Olympiad is fun competition and thought provoking."

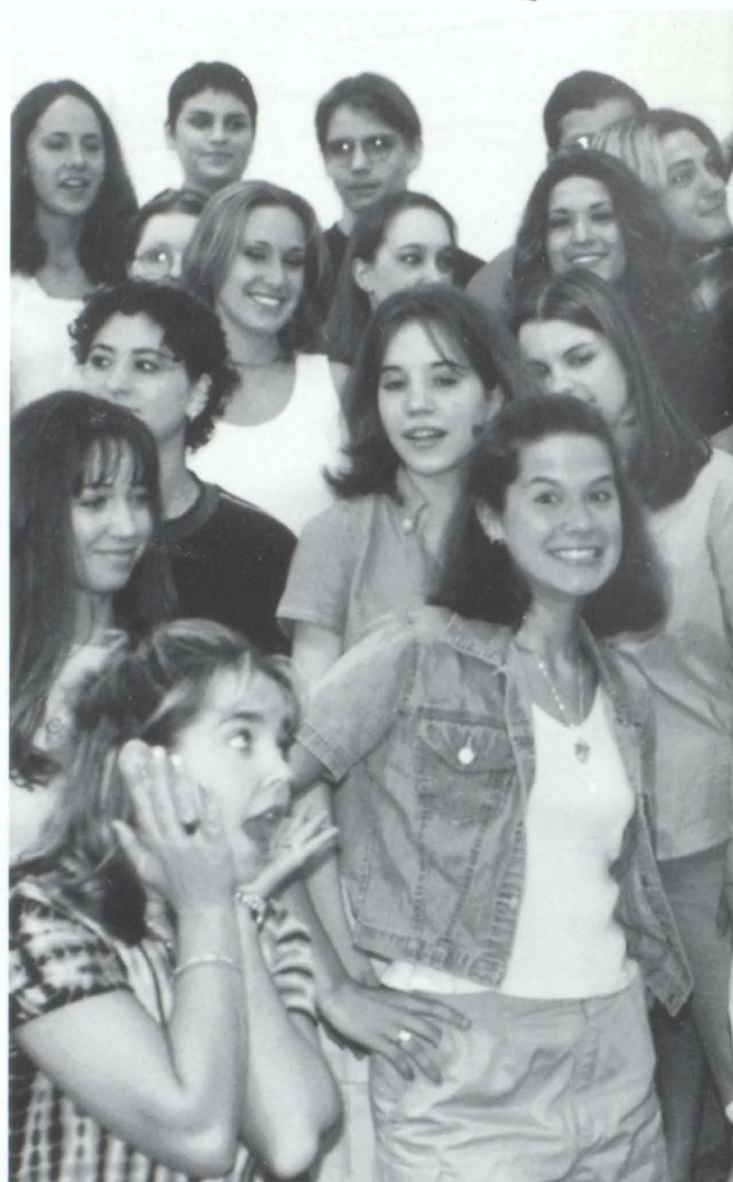

Choosing as their yearly theme "Morph Magic," and advertising, Odyssey of the Mind members created a successful competition with one team placing third in the state. After months of preparation, the team was given 10 to 15 minutes to answer and perform their act. All the work was done by the 12 members with the supervision from their sponsor, Mr. Ray Lentz.

FOLLOW THE LEADERS

United together a group of students can do anything: Student Council, Peer Helpers, N-Teens, and Business Professionals of America (BPA) proved the truth of this statement. Through working together the members of these clubs made a difference in the school and community.

This was the first year that Student Council became actively involved in the school environment. Members put together all of the festivities for homecoming week, which included spirit week, the Indian letters at the football game, a pep rally, and the dance. The council also sponsored the talent show to give students a chance to display their hidden talents. Some of the many other activities sponsored by the club were a free car wash for the faculty, Halloween Dress-Up Day, the toy drive, and a leadership conference. The year was a time of many firsts for both the council and the students.

Peer Helpers focused their energy this year into helping out other clubs. Members helped Interact with the food drive by collecting cans and volunteering at a Thanksgiving dinner for the less fortunate. They also aided with Student Council's toy drive by buying Christmas gifts for a child. During October and April a couple members attended Snow Ball, a four day lock-in that centers on preventing drug and alcohol abuse.

N-teens had a successful year filled with activities that benefited both the school and the community. Members went to a local day care on Halloween and sponsored a party for all of the children. During the Christmas season members went caroling and sponsored two children for the toy drive. They also had a Christmas party where they exchanged gifts and ate pizza. At the end of the year members went on a cruise in Monticello, Indiana. On this boat they danced, ate, and celebrated their accomplishments for the year.

The BPA members' hardwork allowed them to advance to nationals in Texas. The financial analyst team of Lisa VandenAkker, Mike Flynn, Brad Gorney, and Jessica Wright placed first at district, second at state, and tenth at nationals. Jason Lylra placed third and fifth at nationals in computerized accounting and financial specialist. Grant Carmichael also advanced to national competition. Lisa VandenAkker commented, "BPA Nationals was so much fun and Mrs. Rosinski is the coolest sponsor. You don't realize what fun you're missing out on."

HELPING THOSE IN NEED

Upping the total of collected cans of food from last year by more than 8,400, the Interact's food drive collected 97,435 cans. As a yearly commitment, Mr. Tom Clark's class again came in first place by collecting 15,674 cans, but this year more awards were offered and several classrooms enjoyed donuts, milk, and juice for having collected more than 1,500 cans.

Besides food collections for the community, Interact members were challenged with other tasks that used their time and effort for the betterment of the others. "Interact helps anybody in the community who needs food or shelter," said Suzie Mitchell, 11. "We also made a video for Red Ribbon Week. Any Interact member who wished to participate was included in the video."

Established in 1982, Interact was purposed from the beginning to help teach community responsibility. "My favorite thing that Interact does is the food drive," said Clark, Interact sponsor. Interact also delivered a check to an LC custodial staff member whose house was burned down in the early winter.

Interact participated in the annual March of Dimes, ran the school's recycling program, helped Student Government with the Toy Drive, performed community service hours, and selected an educator of the year.

Interact student president, Jody Warieka, 12, enjoyed the help of vice president, Allison Gunty. Officers led the large club through the year's annual activities and helped meet community needs. "My favorite thing Interact does is the food drive. If more people got involved in helping the community, it would be a better place. It helps you grow a better perspective of the world. It also makes you more thankful for the things you have in life."

SHINING NEW FACES

U nification became the watchword key to success. Along with Superintendent Janet Emerick and Senior Principal Sandy Platt, the four new faces of Principal Linda Yonke, Junior Principal Adrian Richie, Sophomore Principal Dale Petranczyk, and Freshman Principal Ken Miller joined forces to achieve this goal. "Even though it is a big school, we want to feel like a small school," said Yonke. One of Yonke's main goals her first year was to get to know the staff and students.

Another goal that Yonke shared with the rest of the administration was the implementation of Block 8 master schedule into the 1998-1999 school year. "An excellent advantage for college bound students and great for laboratory and technology courses," said Platt. It was Platt's duty to complete the Block 8 master schedule, although guidance, under the leadership of Mr. Tom Linger, played an essential role. Administration believed that Block 8 would open an abundance of options for students, who would be able to complete an eight-class schedule over a two-day period, since there would be seven classes plus a Student Resource Time. During the SRT students would enjoy the option of seeing teachers, retaking tests, attending tutoring, or simply finishing the last bits of homework.

Along with planning for an up-to-date schedule format, LC planned for a huge surge in technology updating. During the year teachers received computers and computer training. Educational opportunities provided by the internet became a reality for all teachers as more and more computers and training sessions became available. "It is our goal to have a computer in every classroom," said Superintendent Emerick.

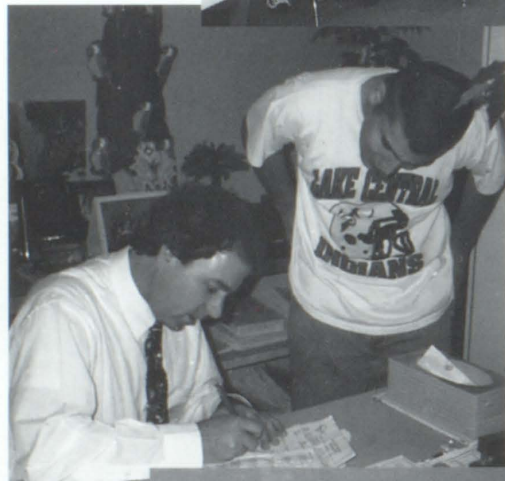

The school year also witnessed additional electronics in the halls, as phones and televisions began blaring the latest news for a more rapid transmission of information.

COME ON IN...

Pre-bell chaos in Clark's World Affairs class.

Nikki Bond, 12, takes on the part of Chaucer's "Franklin."

Sara Sikich, 10, locates our state's capital.

Jenny White, 10, and classmate enjoy the last days before Christmas vacation.

Underneath the sometimes stuffy, rigid-appearing classroom exterior, personalities emerged. As LC teachers listened about inviting classrooms during the guest speaker's opening address August 21, many began to realize what their classrooms said about them.

While some teachers, particularly those newer to LC, could not call any one particular classroom home, others brought interesting posters or displays to attract student interest. Throughout many years students have remained infatuated with Mr. Tom Clark's room. Clark, who has taught history, agreed that his room was one of the best. "It's cool because it's like living in a museum, and I can just pull something out when I am teaching," he said.

Clark's students felt his relics really added interest to the usual lectures and book work. Cori Totias, 10, said, "I like Mr. Clark's room because it's decorated with the interesting historic objects."

"You walk into his room and it's like walking into another world," Mandy Muenich, 11, said of Clark's room. "Everyone knows about the room. He has guns and uniforms, flags from foreign countries, and anything that went to Vietnam and back."

The very nature of science classes demanded that something besides desks and books live in those classrooms. Megan Foley, 10, said, "There are bugs in cases all over Mr. Kiechle's walls. It's weird."

Some teachers tried to bring a taste of home comforts to the long hours spent in the classroom. Kim Klisiak, 11, said, "Mr. McGrath has a plaid chair. The student of the day gets to sit in it. Others from McGrath's classes admonished not being caught sleeping or you would suffer the super soaker, an effective if wet method of waking weary students."

Everyone knew a certain amount of silliness was necessary to avoid monotony. Kristen Koscielniak, 12, said of Mr. Ron Frederick, "One day in his fifth-hour class asked him to put a piece of green chalk on the clock. Then during his sixth-hour, I brought in a green air freshener, and he put that on the clock. Now everyone knows about it."

From Ms. Shirley Hewlett's old cameras and Indian statues to Ms. Angie Lowe's cow collection, some classrooms offer sights that will never be forgotten. Imagine the shock to Dale Ramsy, 10, upon entering Mr. Louis Valse's biology room. "He has dead lambs with hair on them. They have been there for years and the formaldehyde stinks," said Ramsy.

ESCAPE FROM MONOTONY

Unusual teaching techniques were easily found at LC. To avoid the temptation of dozing off during class time, teachers engaged their students with different activities and even rewards. What really worked? "Relate the learning to everyday life," advised Josh Imborek, 9.

Meeting the goals outlined on their first day of school, teachers were reminded of the effects of the classroom. "Making the classroom more comfortable," was important to Michael Kidd, 10. Apparently students did find learning more attractive in comfortable environments.

And students agreed that learning was easier when made into a game. "I like to play games," said Ashley Madryk, 9. "It helps me to understand better and have a good time."

Some teachers rewarded their students for doing well. Most students approved of this idea. "I like getting candy for answering a question correctly," said Mike Talaber, 9.

Individual teaching techniques made each class unique. Ms. DeSt. Jean said, "Doing hands-on labs that apply to everyday life, such as making ice cream to show the freezing point will hold the students' attention. I also review as much as possible."

Teachers were creative in their activities. "I like doing student-teacher interaction," said Frau Iwerson. "Working in pairs or groups also helps the class run better, such as doing dialogues back and forth or even acting out skits."

Most felt teachers were sympathetic to their learning difficulties. "Offering tutoring when we need help is an advantage," said Bri Schaap, 9. Classes were made interesting with sound techniques.

CLASSROOM PROJECTS

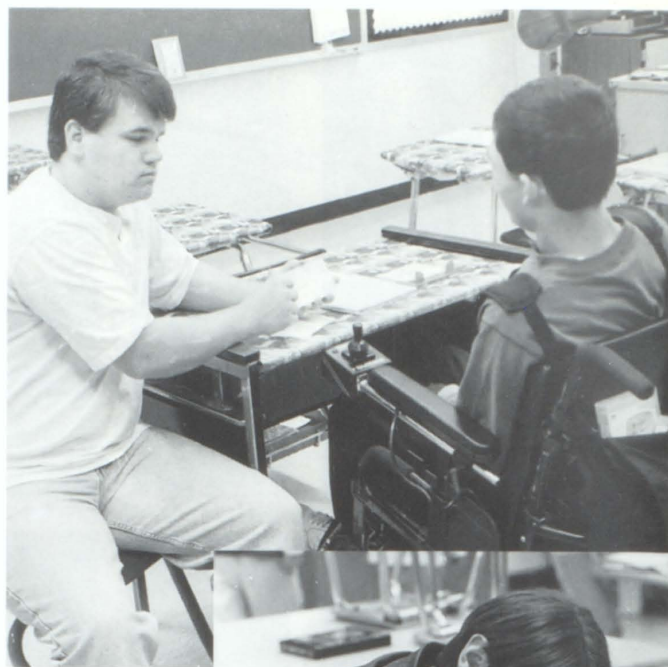

Unusual as they may be, they're the ultimate and sometimes ugly things that make a school year go round. Classroom projects can be fun or they can be boring, depending on the way students tackle them.

Remember your science projects? Ms. Kathy Ignas' bio-chem classes worked on endangered species reports and drawings. Requirements included finding out three major reasons for endangerment and three steps being taken to prevent extinction.

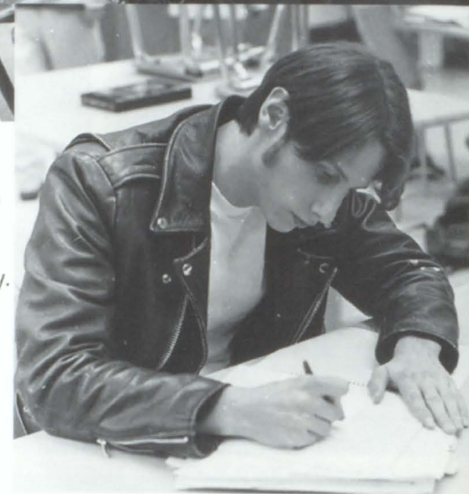

Or how about what you made in ceramics class? Ms. Chris Gray's ceramics classes completed a large ceramic portrait outside her art room. Students had been collecting the self-portrait tiles for years, finally amassing enough to decorate the wall. Bryan Parkinson, 11, said, "I enjoyed everything we did in ceramics class. I found it very stimulating and it relaxed me."

Practice makes perfect, especially for choir. Mr. Michael T. Lewis and Ms. Sandra Hobbs practiced with the choirs for all their concerts. Megan Kozanda, 12, said, "I feel like every day is like a class project. Everyone worked really hard this year and without Mr. Lewis and Ms. Hobbs, the choir wouldn't have done as great a job as they did."

Although class projects could turn into monotony, mostly they proved fun, and students judged them to be one of the better actual learning tools. Once a project was completed, no one could forget his effort.

With help from his friend Adam Niemiec, 12, Junior Ryan Balicki uses flashcards to sharpen his memory.

A student in Art IV, Senior Derek Stroh hopes to receive an art scholarship for cartooning.

Jasna Jokic, 12, sketches her pencil drawing for Art II. The drawing shown here was entered in the Scholastic Art Show in South Bend.

Juniors Mandy Hilger and John Fladeland complete their Christmas cards for Art II.

Senior Antwain Booker speaks with Mr. VanEaton about his chemistry class while Antwain aides in the the attendance office.

Jane Doe, a teacher at LC, was on her way to work when a St. John policeman pulled her over. The cop said that she was speeding and it was going to be a routine stop, when it happened. After supplying all of the necessary items, like her driver's license and registration, the officer thought everything was going well. But then, he saw it, the deadly weapon the teacher was carrying. He broke out in a cold sweat and asked Ms. Doe to step out of her vehicle.

"It was...it was...it was the scariest thing I've ever seen. It was one of those hideous red pens!" Officer Joe Shmoe said. He is currently being treated for mild shock symptoms at St. Margaret Mercy in Dyer.

The teacher, however, is currently in jail awaiting her trial. "Hi, it was a red pen. I have no idea why I'm in Lake County jail just because I had a red pen. Sorry, I planned to grade some papers." The judges are expected to keep the vicious criminal confined until she realizes what she's done.

The red pen is just as frightening as any other weapon on the streets. And yes, its use is sometimes the difference between life and death. It could be as gentle as a feather or as hazardous as a time bomb, but one thing is for sure, you are the ingredient that determines its danger.

Academics is what separates the men from the boys (or the women from the girls). If your paper always looked as if it got into a fight with other papers, bleeding ink everywhere, then chances are you weren't exactly an academic letterwinner. However, if you had your hand in the air longer than the Statue of Liberty, then you probably are familiar with the letter "A."

Science, math, and English all seem pointless at first, but life will expose their true meaning with just a little time. Dodging a homework assignment and sleeping, instead of studying, were things that every student was guilty of. It's all part of the fun of high school. Some, however, just become accustomed to the pleasure.

It's true that you don't have to be a Harvard scholar to get your high school diploma. You do, however, need to accumulate 40 credits. Once you've achieved that, you've done what you came to do. How you achieve it, on the other hand, is totally different.

Red pens can be scary. Your chemistry teacher with a red pen and your test is even scarier. It's something, however, that everyone fears. You can bet that the harder you tried, the more ink was left in that pen at the end of the year.

Academics is the name of the insurance company that provides happiness. It's always nice to be happy...and smart.

FUTURE PLANS

Undulating back and forth from the future to fun, high-school-age students found it easy to forget that they should be planning for their lives. Worry often consumed the thoughts given over future planning. Too many did not have "the foggiest" concerning their own futures.

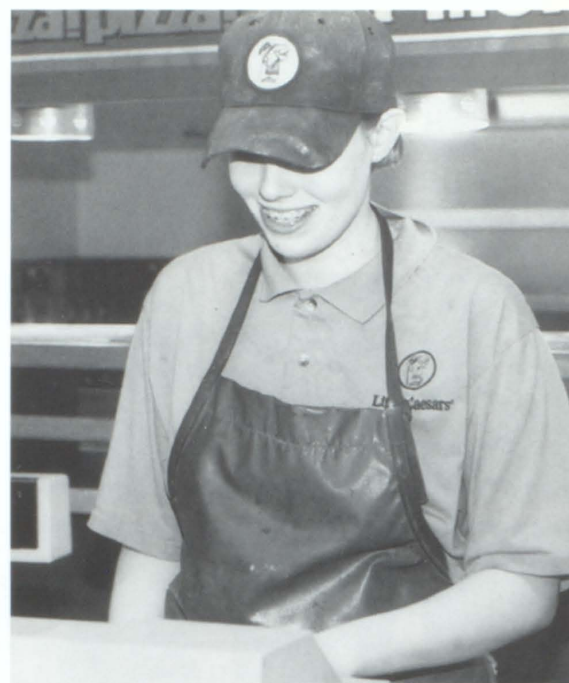

Looking for information about possible careers was a strong reason for opting to attend the Hammond Career Center as part of the daily schedule. According to Mr. Robert Schlender, Freshmen Center assistant principal who was in charge of Career Center planning, "The Hammond Career Center is a great place to find out what you want to do in life."

By attending the Career Center, students enjoyed actually practicing in particular job settings to learn whether that particular field interested them. The center offered a much wider variety of work-oriented classes than a regular high school. Day care work was an important offering, as current statistics indicate that day care will become even more necessary in the future. Another popular choice, according to Schlender, students could study to become chefs. With two restaurants on every corner, future appeal in that area remained positive.

The Career Center also offered three different automotive courses, covering small engine repair, automotive engine repair, and auto body and fender. High school girls who felt they might like to become beauticians could experience a head start at the Career Center, where even cosmetology was a popular course offering.

LC students who chose to spend part of their day at the center were back at LC in time for fourth-hour regular classes. Getting a head start by finding out whether they might like a particular job allowed Area Career Center students to have a peak at what would be next after high school.

READY OR NOT, IT'S COMING

Uh oh, life is coming! It's on its way here to hold you in its claws, grind you in its teeth and spit you out on the floor. Too bad you can't defeat it. The only person who could overcome such a threat would be the man you wore on your underwear for about six or seven years (some still do). You know him as Superman.

But, do you have the essential red cape and super strength? You don't? Oh, well then I guess you're going to have to use the secret weapon. You're going to have to educate yourself (with some help from your teachers) and look life right in the eye and say "I'm ready!"

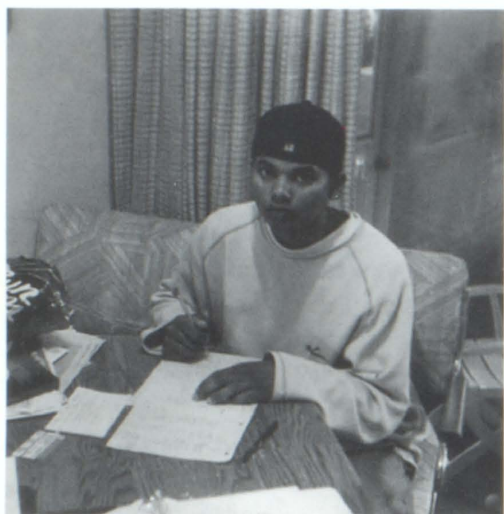

But are you prepared? You have four years as a LC Indian to take what you can get from these mentors and then it's up to you. How will you prepare yourself against your archrival, life? It's going to have to be with the killer combination of math, science and English. They pack a powerful punch.

What will life do to you if you're not prepared? Well, to tell you the truth, it does let some people go. But are you will to take that chance? Because, more times than not, it will attack you and if you can't even put up a fight, it will soon destroy you. What a horrible creature this life is.

Maybe your teachers, who are fighting life right now, are actually right? Is it true that it is difficult to find a valuable job that can support not only yourself but your family as well, without an education? Do you want to have the same opportunities that were granted to you as a teenager, when you're thirty something?

Of course you don't. But, don't go thinking that college is your only choice. Some students go to trade school or even help defend the good ole' U.S.A., after LC is said and done. Any way you go, don't slam the brakes on as soon as your senior year comes to a close. Life never stops. It'll keep coming toward you and if you choose to brake now, then you may become a victim.

The lectures of education's importance in your life are daily. You probably think about how you want life to be when you're older at least once a day. Are you daydreaming about your future car or house? Maybe you're even thinking about that big business you're going to operate? Can these things be obtained without an education? Why don't you check your odds before you make your move because you're gambling with your future.

(Right) Lounging in his chair, Scott Fosher, 10, watches announcements on one of LC's new TVs. 1997 marked the first year the announcements were ever televised. The entire unit cost more than a million dollars.

FAREWELL TO A FRIEND

Uniquely gifted with secret powers, Ms. Kathy Arbuckle knew her library. She may have looked like your average librarian, but she was secretly a superhero. The clues were quite obvious, if you think about it. What other woman would dedicate herself to help out a high school full of teenagers and miss only a limited number of days in her 42-year career? She's Ms. Kathy Arbuckle and this school year ended her career.

Hired by Mr. Bibich, Arbuckle was with LC longer than the letters L and C. She started her career as a librarian at St. John Township High School and then moved on to Dyer Central, where her first "real" library was located.

Finally, LC came along and brought some memories with it. Arbuckle was the sponsor for the cheerleaders for 33 years and that always kept her on her toes. Sometimes, according to Arbuckle, the cheerleaders had to leave for competitions at I.U. after football games, and they'd arrive at Bloomington at about 3 a.m. "The girls usually did well," said Arbuckle.

Arbuckle was always a true Indian. She recalled when the boys' basketball team went undefeated in 1975-76 and when the football team went to the Hoosier Dome. She was even there when the girls' basketball team won state in 1994. "The years Lake Central won the sportsmanship trophy at the sectionals were exciting times," she said.

She also remembers the pain of the old library. Organizing the card catalog was always a burden. The old card catalog, however, since then was placed on a computer network and Arbuckle was grateful. "After many years of hoping, it became reality," she said.

Arbuckle saw many years as a member of the corporation. She remains the essence of what LC is all about. She knew her library well and will be missed by all who have come in contact with her.

ALSO TO RETIRE

Farewell also to two other special faculty members. Mr. Ron Graham will be retiring after 34 years of dedication to LC. And after 27 years of hard work for LC, Roy Rutherford will also be retiring. Best wishes to both educators.

Now...The Future

Unbelievable. We, the lost souls who only four years ago were scampering through the secluded halls of the Freshmen Center, have now managed to escape from the school. All of the miniature desks, taunting Pepsi machines filled with nothing but canned fruit juice, and an overcrowded E-hall are things of the past. Free at last. However, our freedom may not be as glorious as one might predict, for we are not only leaving LC but we are also moving at full speed into the real world. The days of immaturity have ended; it's out of the dugout and into the big leagues.

Responsibilities will suddenly appear out of thin air, and life will prove to be as harsh as we had feared. And slowly but surely, we'll begin to understand what our parents had been pounding into our heads for the past four years. Maybe they were right all along...nah. You won't have Mommy and Daddy to drag you out of bed in the morning; the responsibility will lie with you and you alone. The years of spoon-feeding have ended and there will be no guarantees. No retests. It is time to grow up.

Along with the weight of the world, comes the chance to make a difference. As adults, we will have the power to make any dream come true. We will have opportunities at our fingertips that we never thought feasible. For once you will be behind the wheel, and it will be your decision whether to turn right at the fork in the road. We are the future. The only power the world has to rely on, and what we make of it is our decision.

Whatever the future may hold, we will all undeniably have memories of the past four years. Who could forget the enjoyment of lunch in the courtyard on a warm, breezy day, or the smiling faces of friends who have been around since grammar school? Memories like these will stay with us as the future takes flight. What will take flight? You just wait. Wait 'til you see what's next!

Time To Take A Break

*U*lcer anyone? With all the stress of college so inconveniently placed on the shoulders of seniors, it's astounding there's not more stress-related incidents like ulcers. Their mailboxes are stuffed with pamphlets, test results, and acceptance letters that try to help make difficult decisions easy. But, despite all their frustrations, these seniors weren't biting their fingernails. Not this batch. They were...well...seniors.

C-hall is the annual home of twelfth graders, hosting not only their lockers, but their government and economic classes also. They see the same faces they've seen ever since freshman year (with a few exceptions) and it hits them. They're going to graduate! It's a realization that affects every upperclassman. Soon they will fight for their place in life and LC will become just another memory.

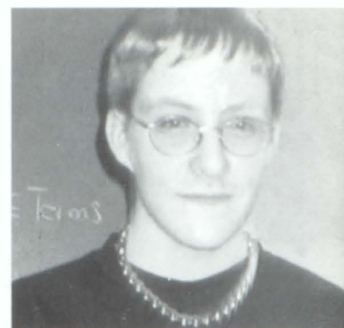

As the year progresses, the feeling grows stronger. It's a tingling throughout your body - a feeling like no other. You're going to get that hard-earned high-school diploma you've heard so much about and be able to compete in this world.

When the first quarter of the senior year hits, many students feel more mature. They're not mere freshmen or juniors. No way. They take pride in that number 12 on their IDs. They've made it through three years of high school already and they want their respect. They deserve it.

When the second quarter rolls around, the anticipation builds. Many upperclassmen fill out all their college applications and take their SATs during this time, and the responsibility is incredible. They can't make a wrong move now.

When the third quarter's here, the seniors leave. Okay, so technically they're still enrolled, but many catch that darn senioritis bug. They start to procrastinate and think about the future. They are completely aware that soon they'll have the weight of high school off their shoulders. They're starting to get excited now.

Then comes fourth quarter. It's here. Fianlly here. With the killer combination of Prom and warm weather, these kids are in paradise. Now's the time to say your good-byes. Now, they must lose some good friends and excellent teachers. It's time to say good-bye to LC forever. But their lives have just begun. Just wait....wait...wait till they see what's next?

SURPASSING TOUGH TIMES

Until meeting rival Munster, the Indians were unable to taste victory, starting their season with disturbing unexpected losses to both Merrillville and Portage. Their woes continued even after the Munster win, as the Indians were unable to unseat big rival Andean at Homecoming. Outcomes could have looked totally different, but with Mike Arcella, 11, out with broken ribs, Nick Testa, 11, suffering a twisted ankle, and senior Paul Vaughters out with a twisted knee, the team lacked their usual offensive and defensive skills.

The season continued to bring disappointment when they headed south on a 4-hour bus trip to Franklin Central only to lose in the last seconds 21-20. But never give up: With an exciting win over Huntington North (23-9), the Indians won four straight. An impressive win over E.C. Central, 53-21, a confidence builder against Elkhart Central, 21-14, and an exciting win over E.C. in the first round of sectional playoffs, 49-42, offered up memories.

Though a strong start in the second round of sectionals against Portage allowed the Indians to control three quarters, Portage came back stubbornly in the fourth, kicking the go-ahead field goal. That lead was never relinquished; the buzzer sounded to a 15-14 loss for LC.

For seniors, high school football careers had closed. "When a person knows he is experiencing his last chance to do something he loves, he normally tries to savor every moment," said senior middle linebacker Joe Kapitan. "I did what every other senior probably did. I did not let one play stand out in my mind, or even one game. I remember every second of every game or practice like it happened five minutes ago. I remember everything from Coach Kiechle's jokes during 2-a-days all the way to our 1 point loss to Portage in the second round of sectionals."

Sectional play remained prominent on other minds. "I think for me the most memorable moment this season was the first round of sectionals win against E.C. Even though I caught the go-ahead touchdown with 12.9 seconds left, the thing that stood out the most was how we came back from a 21-7 deficit. The team showed a lot of heart after starting off the year one and four. A lot of teams would have rolled over and died, but this team wanted it a lot more than any other team. That E.C. game... the way we came together as a team and fed off each other was awesome. I think with that win, we got some respect," said junior wide receiver Testa.

But all the memories weren't about the work. "I look back on all the fun times we had together those three months, and I can't imagine my life any other way," said senior defensive end Vaughters. "Football is just not a game that is played, it is a way of life. I'll never the hard hitting defense and the feeling of hitting someone with all you've got. If there is one thing I want to be quoted on, it's 'Get ya some big papp!'"

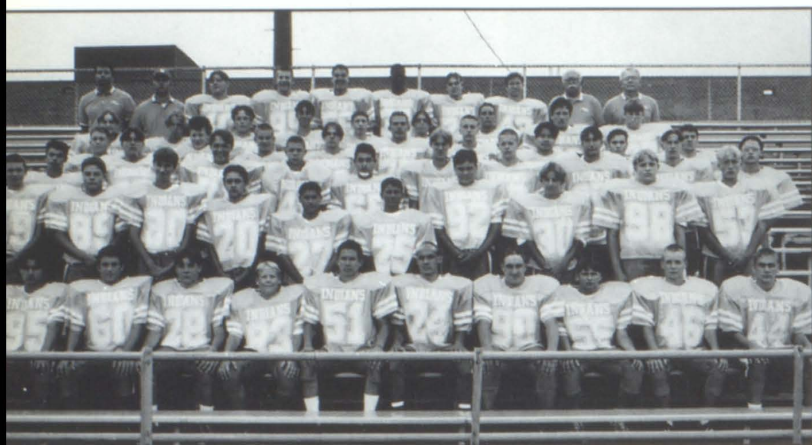

Football and everything about it spoke for some players. "The relationship you make through the years and the hard work during the week so we can come out with a victory on Friday night," said senior defensive back Bill Dodaro, describing the memories. "The long bus rides.... the glory after a good play... the crazy pasta parties."

Intensity and adrenaline can last an entire season, an entire career. A real team focused and motivated, emerged during the late games of the season, and it was incredible to think that such a team could be born from inexperience and poor expectations. From Kevin Spicer's, 12, returning a punt 67

WINNING IS EASY

Undoubtedly the freshman and jv football teams showed LC fans that there were still reasons to renew their tickets for the following season.

Despite being riddled with injuries, the jv squad labored through a 3-4 season under coach Bob Komara. Newcomer quarterback Mike Wilkins, 10, ran the option masterfully in an opening day upset of the Duenland jv conference champs, Merrillville Pirates. The Pirates jumped out to an early lead with a punt return for a touchdown, but two long Danny Duncan, 10, touchdown runs propelled LC to a 22-14 victory. Safety Jim Haitz collected two interceptions as LC's defense shut down Merrillville quarterback Mike Megyesi, 11.

LC could not duplicate their first performance. They suffered back-to-back losses to Portage and Munster by a combined score of 42-12. In the 28-6 loss to Portage, wide receiver Scott Fosher, 10, hauled in a long touchdown from Wilkins to avoid the shut-out.

LC rebounded from the losses to beat South Bend St. Joseph at home 18-16. The score was not indicative of how close the game was. St. Joseph scored two touchdowns in the last minute to avoid a scoreboard blowout. Running back Altay Tascioglu, 11, plunged in from two yards away to start the scoring. Richard Tate, 10, added a score of his own in the second half.

The jv season concluded with a 44-8 shellacking of East Chicago and a 20-14 road loss to Highland. Running back Nick Hammond, 11, scored in both games and Tate electrified the Highland crowd with an 85-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

The Freshman "A" team finished with a 6-1 record. The defense allowed only 35 points all season long. The "B" team had a record 4-1-1.

Fullback Mike Melcic, 9, steamrolled through his competition with his punishing running style. The 5-9 225-pound Melcic was promoted to the jv level as a backup for the last game of the season. Quarterback Adam Dowling, 9, engineered Coach Nick Lemon's option offense with ease throughout the year. Running back Shawn Clark, 9, and receiver Ty Tornincasa also showed their potential as LC's offense averaged 24 points during the season.

The defense stifled opponents as evident by their three shutouts. They gave up only an average of 5 points per contest.

BOYS' SOCCER WINS RESPECT

Unthinkable of what could be accomplished in the post-season, the boys' varsity soccer team started the year in August with uncertainty of how they would stand in the competition in the "region." The team returned experienced seniors who would have to help out the younger players seeing varsity action for the first time.

As the season moved on, the team found themselves demolishing most of the local schools. The place where they seemed to face some worthy opponents came out of the Duneland Athletic Conference a.k.a. DAC. Early on the Indians got the chance to test themselves on the state runner-ups Valparaiso. Jeremy Willet, 12, said, "We just lost track of what we wanted to do on the field. They played their own game and that threw off our team synchronization."

For the rest of the year the Indians banged their way through to some physical victories. Against East Chicago Central the team won by forfeit due to a numerous and unnecessary yellow cards climaxing to a red card of the team's coach for disruptive behavior. Leigh Olszewski, 11, who was elbowed in the eye against EC, said, "Sometimes we faced cheap shot teams and we (the team) were good about keeping them from getting to us."

In the post season the Indians kept their reputation as a tough tournament team as they dominated a challenging sectional. They defeated the EC Cardinals and the Bishop Noll Warriors for the title. Leading the Indians for goals this season was Brian Colby with 16. There was a tie for leading assists between Bo Ramsey, 11, and Andy Grzych, 10, both having eight throughout the year. Ramsey said, "I enjoyed the season this year despite some of the upsets we had. This team put together a darn good year, as much as we were underrated by most of the region."

JV SOCCER ROUGHS OUT SEASON

U mber shades mixed the orange and reds, but through the kaleidoscopic fall leaves, the flashy blue and white captured our attention as jv soccer offered up yet another winning season for our enjoyment.

Ever mindful of giving their best whether at practice or on the field, coaches expected high returns. Mr. Lee Pairs said, "We've had yet another good season this year."

Defeats over Highland, Hobart and Munster built confidence, but some wins tasted sweeter than others. "I think the hardest team for us to play was definitely Andrean, since there is a big rivalry between their school and ours," said Ryan Hoyda, 10.

Team sophomore players Nick Wychocki, Ryan Belvis and Derek Moore offered up totals of seven goals each, providing some of the highest scores this season. Ryan Hoyda, 10, claimed the title of highest number of assists. The team enjoyed gaining their 55 goals and 37 assists, tallying the season at 9 wins, 2 losses and 5 ties. Averaging 3.4 goals per game, jv held their opponents to an unimpressive average 1.3 goals per game. "Traditionally, we've always had a good record here at LC," said Paris.

Players were pleased with their overall performance. "I think the team did a good job this season. I played well, and the others all played their best also. We did especially well in our game against Andrean. That was my best game and probably my most memorable, too," said Hoyda.

The coach's optimism continued throughout the season. "Although they were not quite as good as in the past, 9 wins and 2 losses is not too shabby," said Paris. As the season wound down, team and coach experienced that satisfied, euphoric feeling that only comes after knowing the best has been given. "We did really great this year, especially when we finally beat South Bend. That was the best part of the whole season," said Pete Radjen, 11.

BOYS' X-COUNTRY CONTINUES TRADITION

Under the dead heat of the summer sun, they covered countless miles daily, preparing their lithe young bodies for the eventual 17 minutes of pain. From the beginning, this team faced obstacles with their top two runners, Aaron Crague, with a stress fracture in the leg, and Ronnie Chalos, with a virus that depleted his muscle fibers, both out for an undertermined time of their comeback to the squad. Knowing that each member had to pick up the slack and pull from deep down to remain tough competitors in the state, team captain Tommy Bolda, told his team, "We all have to pull together now. We have to start running as a team and not as individuals."

And united they proved, as underclassmen stepped up to the challenge as their captain had requested. Individuals such as Brian Sowa and Chris Przeborowski came to prime just as the team reunited at the Culver Invitational. Returning to the scene at this meet, Crague and Chalos helped bring in a fourth-place finish.

Given the field, runners considered fourth a respectable placing. Senior Will Anderson said, "The Culver Invite was our most pivotal part of ur season, because our whole team was finally all together. This made us feel more comfortable running in the big meets again."

But health problems again plagued the team toward the end of the season, when Bolda suffered some ill health and Anderson dealt with burn-out after continuous months of running. Junior Ryan Crenshaw, senior Erik Oslawski and sophomore Mike Berger heard the call and began contributing more than their usual share of points to the varsity squad.

Post-season saw the flawless team move easily through sectional and regional competition, winning both. Top finishers were Crague and Chalos. At semi-state trials the Indians clinched a fourth place and another shot at the state championship for the third consecutive year. Led by a first-place finish by Crague's race, the accomplishment in itself was not enough. Crague said, "This team was not satisfied with a fourth place at the semi-state meet. From the beginning of the year, we have known we are state title competitors and we are not counting ourselves out of that chance until the final totals are in."

At the state meet the team brought home a twelfth place, sparked by Crague, who finished seventh in the race. The team was not heartbroken but knew they could have done better. "It was the end of a very memorable season for a lot of us," said Bolda. "When I look back at the season, it was a wild ride that I wouldn't take with anyone other than the guys on this team."

SERVING UP WINS

Ultimately the Boys Varsity Tennis team compiled an 11-6 record. The season was highlighted by their third straight Sectional Championship. Head Coach Mr. Ralph Holden engineered one of the best seasons in recent history.

A reason for LC's early season dominance was the emergence of senior team leaders Dave Todorovich and Joe Skowronski. Holden relied on them heavily. He said, "Todorovich and Skowronski were both seniors playing the number one and number two spots respectively. These two athletes gave us very solid singles play. They led by example and will be greatly missed."

The intense regular season groomed them for their competitive sectional bracket. LC claimed the sectional title with a 3-2 victory over Highland. Holden said, "We avenged an earlier loss by defeating Highland for our third consecutive sectional championship."

In the regionals, LC ended their season with a 3-2 loss versus Munster. It was however a far cry from the spanking that Munster had administered during the regular season. Holden said, "We played our best game of the season against Munster in the regional final. We did lose, but we had a chance later in the match to win. That was my proudest moment as a coach."

STEPPING UP THE LADDER

Under the stress of high expectations, the boys' varsity basketball team opened their season with as much anticipation from the fans as from themselves. Having gone through a building year with a worthy new coach, Mr. Black, dreams of the Dome were not far from anyone's mind. This could be the year...a phrase that LC had cried since the mid-1980's. Black's strategy continued: consistency.

Completing a regular season with 16 wins from 21 games, the Indians felt they had more than a chance. Some opponents had offered true experience. Their winning of all home games provided the best-of-season memory. Travel to far-off schools also became the norm, as basketball of Hoosier Hysteria rearranged the state according to school size.

Teammates boosted each other's adrenaline as season completion neared. "This season the team pulled together when it was needed most; that was our key to having such a successful season," said Mike Gelon, 12.

Brought down suddenly during an off-night performance, the Indians failed to exit the sectional play as winners. Players later reminisced about their year's experiences. Senior J.T. Myszak said, "Being this was my senior year, I couldn't have asked for a better team."

Spectacular Sights

Urged on by excited fans, the boys' junior varsity and freshman basketball teams played with talent. Both teams, pushed by great playing records, performed to their highest abilities. They concentrated on approving their own ability and helped the boys' varsity team along the way. Their outstanding attitudes showed in their on-court performances.

LC cheered the junior varsity team to their total of 13 wins out of 20 games. Taking pride in their skills, they focused on working hard to overcome any limitations. The freshman team enjoyed the thrill of playing against other talented basketball players in the area.

The junior varsity team bettered themselves throughout their season. Spencer Sunde, 10, said, "I think that the JV season went well. The practices were really tough, and the coaches pushed us a lot, but I think that it definitely improved us as players and people."

Team cooperation led to good times for everyone. Mike Fieldhouse, 11, said, "We played some teams, won some games, had a lot of fun along the way, and we all looked good doing it."

The team also focused on improving their teammates and fellow LC Indians' basketball expertise. Sophomore Andy Jakubowicz, said, "I think the JV season was a success. As JV players, our job was to make the varsity better while improving our skills, also, and I think we accomplished both."

A SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Undaunted, the boys' swimming team concluded a successful 13-2 season by placing seventh at the IHSAA State Championship at Indianapolis. LC finished third in the 200-Meter Medley Relay with a team of juniors Todd Smolinski, and Ray Robinson and freshmen Ryan Nigh and Ben Simes. Smolinski placed fourth in the 200-meter individual medley with a time of 1:52.57. Jason Mallory of Penn won the even in 1:48.53. The Indians 200-meter relay free-style team of seniors Jeremy Willet, Greg Bobo, John Kurzawinski and sophomore Shawn Siuba placed tenth with a time of 1:29.33. Kurzawinski was tenth in the 100-meter breaststroke while Robinson finished sixteenth overall.

The Indians started the season with a 127-57 whipping of the Valparaiso at home. LC won the 200-meter relay in 1:41.09. Robinson highlighted LC's individual performances with an impressive time of 1:03.57 in the 100-meter breaststroke.

After placing first in the Munster Relays, LC won their next four varsity meets. The Indians trounced Chesterton, Lafayette Jefferson, Highland, and Portage to raise their record to 5-0.

Willet dazzled the Chesterton crowd with a 50-meter free style win in 23.34 seconds.

Although LC dropped the 200 medley meter relay to a tough Highland Trojan team, they more than compensated for it by winning the 400 medley meter relay. Smolinski also set a Highland pool record 100-meter backstroke time of 51.06. The loss was Highland's first of the season after a 5-0 start.

LC finished first in their home invitational, but followed that with two frustrating losses to first ranked Columbia North and second-ranked Carmel by a combined score of 239-133. The Indians responded to those two losses by ripping off six straight victories.

LC placed second in the Penn Invitational behind the eventual state champs, Carmel Greyhounds. LC won the 200-meter medley relay in 1:39.85 and 100-meter backstroke in 51.21 seconds.

The Indians finished the regular season with wins over Indianapolis North Central and Crown Point.

Smolinski was named team MVP... Sophomore Kevin Dalton was winner of Best Mental Attitude...Simes was named rookie of the year...Sophomore Dale Ramsy was the most promising newcomer.

HOCKEY TEAM STRUGGLES

Unfortunately the varsity hockey team struggled to a 13-21 record under the guidance of first-year head coach Doug Johnson.

LC opened the season with four straight losses, including an action-packed 6-3 loss to the Bishop Noll Warriors. They picked up their first victory against Marist 1-0.

Despite their early season struggles, Johnson's seniors played inspired hockey. He said, "We had ten seniors who lettered. They led the team in the direction that they wanted it to go."

Seniors Grant Schaap, Jake Budzowski, Adam Brown, J.D. Sickles, and Ryan Early were the leaders on the offensive end for squad. The forward was instrumental in LC's formidable scoring punch.

The Marist victory was followed by losses to Lincoln-Way and Providence and wins over Munster and Fort Wayne Snider. They outscored their opponents by a combined score of 7-2 in those victories.

After losing three out of their next four games, LC exploded with three consecutive wins over Crown Point, Maine, and Marist. After beating the Bulldogs 5-0, LC shut out Maine 2-0. Budzowski scored twice, and senior Matt Gorentz and junior Jeff Lock each pitched in an assist. Junior goalie Jason Gargas contributed 15 saves.

The 2-1 win over Marist was highlighted by senior goalie Ross Kupsik's spectacular 25-save performance. Sickles and senior Eric Hamilton accounted for LC scoring.

After another three game losing streak, LC downed their local rivals, the Highland Trojans, 4-3. Grooms and senior Andy Hazard each scored 2 goals. Gargas pitched in 16 saves.

LC finished the year with a 9-0 spanking of Indianapolis Ben Davis and a 3-2 loss to Homestead.

After a mediocre end of January, LC welcomed February with 4-1 win over South Bend Riley. Schaap erupted with three goals. Early had 13 saves for LC.

Without the IHSAA being the governing body for Indian Hockey, LC had to beware of teams that weren't playing fair. "There are no state regulations on the teams we play. Many of them we play are composed of city-wide all-stars, in some cases the players didn't even attend the school that they were playing for," said Johnson.

Overall, Coach Johnson is happy with the progress that the LC Hockey program has made. He said, "We saw our team improve and open their eyes to a part of the game that they hadn't been exposed to before."

WRESTLERS BEAT ODDS

Ulook into the eyes of your opponent and discover the man you're about to take down in just a matter of seconds. Well, hopefully. You can never be too sure though. He wants this victory just as bad as you do and the only thing that will keep him from getting it is your skill and ability.

Wrestling calls for just as much mental ability as it does physical, and with a record of 10-11, you know that LC's team was strong. Killing teams like Andean and Freemont, LC managed to make some noise throughout the season. The team took third in the Hobart Invitational and first in the I.H.S.A. A. Sectional, proving their skills to the rest of the conference.

Many of the losses for LC were almost too close to call. Although teams like Lake Station, Calumet, EC Central, Crown Point and Hobart put a loss in the team's record, LC gave them a run for their money.

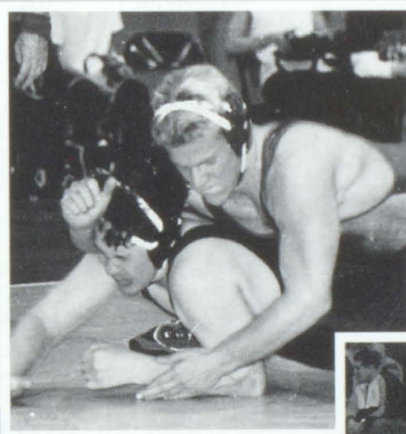

In the shadow of Vince Sessa, the team had someone they could look up to, although Coach Robert Emerick wanted his wrestlers to recognize their own skills and abilities. Ryan Alb, 11, was considered to be by most the dominant wrestler for LC this year. Mario Castaneda, 12, said, "Alb is someone everyone in the state knows and fears. He is someone most people wish to model themselves after on the mat."

Castaneda felt that if all the injuries were taken into account, the team's 10-11 record was impressive. "We had a rough go at it in the beginning because we were a young team. By the end of the year we came together and won the sectional, and come within 30 points of becoming Regional champs," he said.

Wrestling picked up major popularity of late. People were finally starting to realize that the opponents genuinely respected each other and they were not blood-thirsty animals. They were just athletes doing what athletes do best...compete.

SWING INTO ACTION

Using the previous season's sectional title win as an expectation, returning seniors Ron Bodie, Will Rybarczyk, and Jim Brewer carried the Indians to a 14-2 regular season.

LC began the season with a second-place finish (160) against the Portage Indians (153) and Munster Mustangs (163). The Indians then traveled to Michigan City for the prestigious Marquette Invitational. Among a field of 15 quality teams, LC took home a top-half finish.

LC's next contest was a road win (164) at Rensselaer (174) to improve to 3-1. Kankakee Valley finished in last place with 200 points.

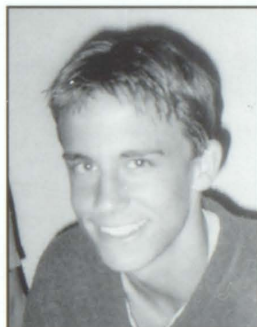

Their impressive start could be attributed to Bodie's play. He entered the season with three years of playing experience and an MVP award for his junior season. He said, "I am doing my best, and I guess it has paid off."

The Indians then hosted the Mishawaka Penn Kingsmen and Valparaiso Vikings at Briar Ridge. LC tied for second place with the Vikings with a 172, while Penn took home the win (169).

After winning their next two meets at Crown Point and LaPorte, LC competed in the Rensselaer Invitational. LC brought home first place among 20 teams.

The most emotional outing of the season was the Lou Iaconetti Memorial Tournament at Lake Hills Golf Course. Iaconetti, a former LC educator, succumbed to cancer just before the tournament. Despite this tragedy, LC endured and responded with a first-place finish.

BASEBALL DEMANDS WINS

Unleashing the sound of bat hitting ball, the smell of hotdogs permeates the air, and LC looks to crunch their opponents: ah, baseball is great. Well, for Indian fans it was. With the team slaughtering so many of their opponents, it was difficult to understand why other teams bothered to play. Only three schools escaped their grasp, while 26 became victims.

The Indians opened season with a win against Munster and ended with the same result against Merrillville. In between the team established itself as one of the best baseball teams ever organized at LC.

With Mr. Larry Veracco's leadership, the guys came through the usual thick and thin of the season. Their few losses occurred against teams like Harrison, Crown Point, and Mt. Vernon. The team, however, lost by only a total of three runs in all three games--one run per team!

Revenge was sometimes sweet, and the Indians managed to scurry up 20 runs against the CP Bulldogs' five. In fact, the team was able to produce an amazing 270 runs total before advancing to sectionals, quite an impressive accumulation considering they allowed only 101 total runs against them.

Many were unable to hit the pitching of seniors Bill Schaaf and Neal Frendling, who was drafted. With glove and bat, Jeremy Willett, 12, said, "This year has been by far the most fun. Our team is strong because everyone works so hard."

UP TO THEIR WINNING WAYS

Unlike the baseball teams of past, the ju and freshman teams showed that they could compete with the best. It was hard to win in the region with so many talented teams. The players were out to prove to the area they play like the varsity. The freshman team went undefeated until late in the season. The ju had a record of 24-6 under new head coach, Brian Davis.

Many players came up big for the ju team, Aaron Davis, 10, showed his skills at third base and at the plate, while Rob Schackleton, 10, was behind the plate at catcher. "We had a great year. It was not surprising how well we worked together. There was a lot of heart on the team. Dealing with a new coach was supposed to be hard, but they made it a fun year so it was not hard to get used to them. I hope the same group will stick together for the rest of our high school career," said Davis. Shackleton also saw some varsity time. Shawn Clark and Tommy Johnson, both freshmen, were brought up to the ju level due to their excessive talent. Johnson dressed for varsity on occasion, which is a great honor for a freshman.

The freshman team was one of the best ever that LC had in its years of having baseball. They had an incredible record of 21-2 behind some solid defense and hitting that could not be stopped. "Our success was based on love for the game. Everyone on the freshman team became a well-oiled machine. We could not be stopped. Coach Davis was a great coach. He knew how to coach and we listened," said Steve Bartnik, 9. The team averaged around eight runs per game and only allowed an average of three. Scott Skowronski was a huge contributor and having the highest batting average of .417.

All players had their eyes set on starting varsity some day and that dream would true with lots of dedication and practice.

BOYS' TRACK POSTS STRONG SEASON

Undecided spots occupied Coach Rudy Skorupa's mind; it was tough imagining who would step up. The distance crew would still be strong, as Aaron Crague, 12, Tom Bolda, 12, and Ronnie Chalos, 11, were all back for the 1600 and 3200m runs. Other seniors proving valuable varsity assets were Kyle Kwasny, Kevin Spicer, Jeff Thacker, Ryan Lindinger, Will Anderson, Dave Costenaro, and Craig Haddix.

Having tied for second regional placement last year, the team looked toward the championship title, but sprinting and throwing events would need picking up. Gary regionals offered 100, 200, 400, and 4x100m dashes and relays that were tough to score against. "In some cases a team of a couple of good sprinters can take a regional title just because of all the different sprints," said Coach Skorupa. Luckily, first-year runner Chris VanNorman, 12, and freshman Jason Hurley came out of the woodwork and consistently scored for the 400m dash. Kwasny offered hurdle help along with pole vaulting and running the 110m HH and 300mLH with an occasional 4x400 relay.

Working and experimenting cleaned up some events, going the season with just one loss at the Valparaiso Invitational during the indoor season. Year's end took the ninth consecutive sectional title, outscoring second place by 80 points. Crague said, "In all four years of running track, we've never lost a sectional and that was great. To know we were coming into the meet ceded to win by a bunch of points was awesome."

Although Michigan City took the regional title, five LC events qualified for state. The 4x800 with Anderson, junior Greg Kleis, Chalos, and Crague who also headed to state in the 3200m run. Kwasny qualified in the 110m high hurdles, 300m low hurdles, and the pole vault.

The following week the qualifiers ran at IUPUI in Indianapolis in the state track meet. Crague took a fifth place finish in the 3200m run while Kwasny finished ninth in the high hurdles and eighth in the pole vault.

LOTS TO CHEER ABOUT

Undoubtedly the longest season of all sports, cheerleading has become more and more popular as the sport grows nationwide. Cheerleaders make the same trips with the football and two basketball teams. They were in Huntington North, Franklin Central, Elkhart Central, all through the post season and even got the chance to cheer down at the Market Square Arena for the girls' basketball state championship game. They also competed in many competitions of their own which took a lot of practice and team work to accomplish what they did.

Many varsity awards included placing third at regionals, qualifying for state and getting eleventh, winning the Highland competition by a huge margin, and sweeping the Valpo competition in all levels. The biggest thrill came when they came in second at the NCA competition. JV went out and won at Highland, Valpo, and at the NCA competition, while placing second at regionals and tenth at state. The freshman squad made first at Highland and Valpo, and also placed second at the NCA competition.

"This year has been filled with many exciting accomplishments. Between all of our competitions and the games we really worked hard. I had a lot of fun this year, tumbling at the games was the most fun," said Becky Pluskota, 11.

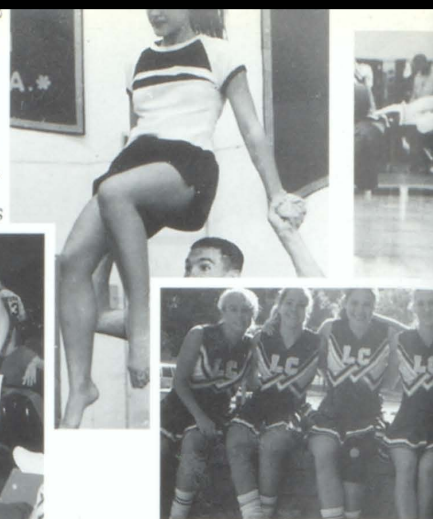

"It has been a great experience being a cheerleader the last five years, but this past year has been the best. We all worked so hard and accomplished a lot. The best was when we made it to state for cheerleading and cheering at Market Square Arena. I really enjoyed this past year," stated Melanie Zdonek, 11.

"Cheerleading was a lot of fun this year, what made it the best though was doing so well in the competitions and seeing all the hard work pay off," said senior Michelle Hussey.

"This year of cheerleading was the definitely the best. We went to tons of competitions and did a great job," stated Beth Hendricks.

THE CHEERLEADERS SHOW lots of enthusiasm at the end of their routine to get the crowd going at the pep rally.

SETTING A RECORD SEASON

Senior Shelley Neitzel gives it all she's got during the grueling State cross-country meet.

Senior Teresa Gaura finishes with a bang at the State cross-country finals.

Unparalleled success, though every athlete's dream, always proved difficult for a team to achieve and even harder to maintain. Previously attained goals from preceding years set a seasonal mood, offering pressure for the girls to reach past it. But the girls' cross-country team pulled together yet again finished with a victorious season.

Undergoing several changes throughout their season, the team did manage impressive improvements. Besides incoming freshmen, two other new additions brought strength to the sport. Mr. Doug Burns became an active assistant coach, and an exchange student from Denmark, Jill Fly, continued with the team throughout the season.

Running on a cross country team was not for the ordinary or average. Demanding hard work, determination and effort, their times together were fun, too.

The girls journeyed down to Brown County for their annual get-away, where they spent a few days enjoying the change of scenery. Competitions among the runners for running the most miles over the summer kept them used to staying in shape and competing. The top 15 runners enjoyed a run along Navy Pier in Chicago, topped off by, naturally, shopping.

But running wasn't quite as easy as shopping along Michigan Avenue. The grueling practices that these girls endured were never easy, especially on hot, muggy, sticky days. The girls toughed out these runs, knowing that each mile covered would send their season further ahead.

Running to a sectional victory, Shelley Neitzel, 12, lead the team with a first place finish overall. The state meet witnessed Neitzel, Teresa Gaura, 12, Nikki Kerr, 11, Megan Glover, 11, Angie Monzin, 10, Anne Kovacs, 10, and Courtney Janda, 9, led the team to a ninth-place finish among the top teams throughout the state, offering the school's best-ever finish.

Judging from past experience, the hard work and determination as well as the success will serve as encouragement for continued cross country success.

GIRLS' SOCCER SURVIVES STATE

Unstoppable proved the best word to describe girls' varsity soccer. In only their fourth season of play, the girls joined the ranks of many other school sports teams when, after a season of hardwork and dedication, advanced to state competition.

Although the girls did not win at state, they were confident they played their hearts out and proved unerringly that they deserved to be there. "It was really disappointing that we lost in the semifinals, but we played a great game and we're proud that we even got to be in the state tournament. We had an awesome season and we've proven that LC can play the caliber of soccer to compete with the best in the state. We'll be back next year," remarked sophomore Melanie Sherwinski.

The games leading toward state offered nearly as much satisfaction as state competition, since the girls defeated their long time rivals, Penn and South Bend St. Joe. After defeating St. Joe in the first game at regional competition, the girls knew that they were heading to state. "It was nice to finally put South Bend St. Joe in their place," said junior Lori Moore.

Besides attaining numerous team accomplishments, several individual team members gained prestigious recognition. Lori Moore, 11, April Spencer, 12, Nicolette Bond, 12 were named to the Indiana Coaches of Girls' Sports Association All-State First Team. Also Megan Pluskis, 10, was named to the Second All-State Team and Adrienne Bond, 10, received an honorable mention.

Soccer girls could hardly wait to see what would happen next, as the year fulfilled dreams and created memories. Bond said, "I hope everyone, at least once, gets to watch her dreams and hopes come together to create a perfect memory. Such was my entire soccer season."

FOLLOWING IN THE FOOTSTEPS...

Unmatched in experience and desire to win, the JV girls' soccer team felt victory throughout their season. Although the team did not experience a win every game, they always stuck together as a team Staci Tomaszewski, 11, said, "The season as a whole was fantastic! We learned to work together as one. Even though we had some tough times and some bumps along the way, we came through it together."

Jv preparation was all too often observed as being strictly training for future varsity work. But the experience gained was more than preparation; their season belonged to them and was an end in itself.

One of the main components of team's success could be attributed to the strong effort put forth by freshmen players. "The freshmen did a good job accomplishing what had to be done," said Mary Graham (10).

Freshman Kim Hayes accredited much of the team's success to the leadership displayed by team captains were great teachers and very motivating."

Such motivation really aided the girls in their game against Merrillville. The girls pulled together to beat their rivals by 3-2. "I feel, over all, we had a good season. We had our ups and downs, but at the end we did well. I think the Merrillville game proved our abilities. It was the last game of the season and everyone played exceptionally well and really came together as a team," commented Colleen O'Sullivan.

The girls were at the top of their game by the end of the season. Patty Popa recalled, "We improved from the first game to the last." Confident that they were prepared to continue their winning tradition, team members look forward to the excitement of playing on varsity.

SWING INTO ACTION

Undergoing tough competition, the LC Lady Indians headed south to Prestwick Country Club, for the second consecutive State Competition. The team stuck together mentally and physically this year and came in tenth place of 18 teams. The Lady Indian golfers came first in both sectional and regional competitions. Coach Doug Johnson said, "I Wouldn't be making the trip if I didn't think we would be coming back. We have three girls who played the course in last year's finals, I think that is a huge advantage."

Amanda Zipko, 12, the MVP, responded, "There was more teamwork. If one person did bad, another person would pick up their slack." Zipko said that Valpo was their toughest opponent and that her most memorable event was making it to state by one stroke, then missing the second week by one stroke.

During the sectionals LC yanked the rug out from under the rest of the teams. The girls had a team score of 355, with Hilary Toyias, 12 leading the team with a season low of 81. Toyias received medalist by shooting the lowest score in the whole field. Zipko shot behind her with an 86. Nicole Nelson, 10 shot a 90 for her first sectional experience.

State was definitely in the girls' eyes throughout the regional competition, and placed in the top three. The Lady Indians tied for second place with Penn, with a score of 378. LC was bumped to third place because Penn's fifth girl's score was lower than LC's. On the last hole, Amanda Zipko made par putt that sent them to state. LC enjoyed an amazing game!

OVERCOMING CHALLENGES

Ultimate youth invaded the LC volleyball team last season. Julia Kaufman was the lone senior on a squad predominately comprised of sophomores and juniors. The team finished with a 15-19 record.

After a season opening loss to Valparaiso, LC traveled to Crown Point and defeated the Lady Bulldogs. Kaufman finished 10-10 serving and 15-19 passing.

Sophomore Kim Blastick had 20 assists and Junior Jill Huetten was 10-10 in blocking.

The Lady Indians stumbled to six straight defeats, losing to powerhouses Muncie Burris and Penn. Blastick relished the opportunity against high level competition. She said, "I think playing ranked teams helped our development. It showed us our potential."

LC sandwiched wins over Hammond and Chesterton, between another losing streak, at the Lake Central Tournament. Junior Brooke Platt was 132-137 in setting. Junior Amanda Suroviak was 32-32 in blocking and accumulated 12 kills.

A victory over Indianapolis Brebeuf ignited a mid-season run. LC won 7 of their next 9 games at that point. A big reason for the surge was the play of Kaufman. She served as the leader on a team made up of mostly young talent. Blastick said, "She (Kaufman) kept our attitude up. She also treated everyone equally."

Kaufman accepted her role as team leader. She said, "It was tough being the only senior on the team, but I kept pushing them (the younger players) and making them work hard."

Kaufman also had her best season of her high school career. She said, "This has been my best season individually and as a team. I accomplished a lot of my goals that I had set."

Huetten had her finest season as a middle hitter.

During LC's third place finish at the Lafayette Harrison Invitational, Huetten finished 40-41 hitting and had 28 kills. Huetten said, "We had fun despite our inexperience. We also had a really tough schedule."

The Lady Indians finished the regular season with wins against Portage and Marion in a weekend tournament.

LC played Highland in the first round of Sectionals. The Lady Indians jumped out with a first set victory, before losing the next two straight.

PROVING DETERMINATION

Ultra determination coupled with talent and maintained by persistence transferred easily to the court for the jv and frosh volleyball teams. Lindsey Madryk, 11, led the jv squad throughout the impressive season. Madryk's main help extended from freshman Diane Szany. Overall, team players felt that potential remained high through the season. The jv squad was ready for the undefeated Andrean squad. The Indians ended up beating Andrean in the final game. Coach Dybel did a great job getting the team prepared for their knockout season. "We played really well as a team this year. We all got along great," said junior Lindsey Madryk.

Freshman volleyball team members united and began to learn the intricacies of playing as a team. Kicking off their athletic careers, they showed future potential by knocking down a season record of 17 and 12. The team could not help but have fun while pursuing their many goals. Coach Arehart did an outstanding job pulling the new squad together.

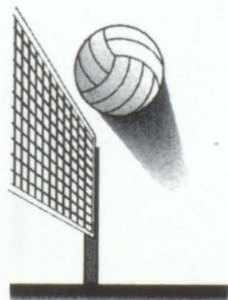

Playing well for the Indians this season were Lisa Horgash and Lori Hecimovich. They helped pull the team together. The freshman team had many talented athletes. The team played well against Portage beating both "A" and "B" teams. The team showed their talent at the Lake Central Invitational. They beat Bishop Noll, Valparaiso, and Lowell. What a way to finish off the season. Throughout the season the team conquered their fears and proved their dedication to the sport.

Coach Arehart reigned over the freshman squad to pull the team through the season. Both jv and frosh teams achieved many goals this season. The teams had great success because of their constant determination.

Coach Arehart and the Frosh Volleyball team celebrate after defeating both Portage teams. The team pulled together for a knock-out season.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL MAKES RUN FOR STATE

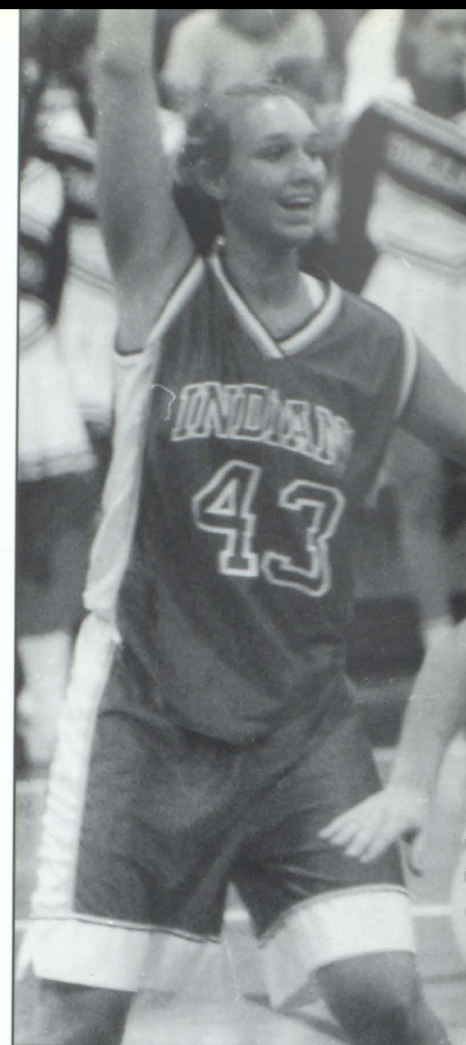

Undefeated until their final game, the girls' varsity basketball team experienced a roller coaster season otherwise. The loss of a good fan and close friend, several team injuries, and the near death of a teammate failed to spoil the ultimate focus on Market Square Arena. The season opened positively, with the Indians beating up on both local and impressive state competition.

The anticipation of third-ranked-nationally Loyola Academy was overshadowed by Eric Ostojic's death, and senior starter Carrie Draper would be lost for the season due to ACL. Despite the overwhelming gloom, LC downed Loyola 45-42. Senior Kelly Komara said, "This game was an incredible lift despite what happened prior to the game and the injury with Draper. Still, the next Monday I knew I would have to go to my trig class where Stoj's desk would be empty."

Their woes continued: Kristin Rucinski tore her ACL; Meggan Mokol suffered a brain hemorrhage the morning of regional play; Komara turned her ankle. With help from an overtime, LC trounced McCutcheon 72-65 in the semi-state. Fort Wayne Snider went down 58-30, and the Indians were headed to MSA.

Back home, LC anticipated their final playing hours. Cheerleader Megan Glaros said, "I was so nervous for the girls that whole game, I just wanted to know the outcome." The showdown saw three Miss Basketball candidates offer a spectacle of fast moving fantastic basketball during a seesaw battle. Clutch shots and aggressive defense kept the Indians in the game, though the buzzer sounded to a 71-65 Martinsville lead. Kelly Kuhn was awarded the state mental attitude award, and Komara later brought home the Miss Basketball title.

Truly experiencing the anticipation of waiting to see what would happen next, the team managed to retain its goose egg under the L column for the entire season, being the first team in LC's history to accomplish such a feat.

GIRLS JV/FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

Under the watchful eye of Coach Keith Hauber and Coach Ann Downey, the girls' jv and freshman basketball teams fought through their seasons. The jv squad finished off the season with a record over .500 and went 7-3 against the rugged competition of the Duneland Athletic Conference teams. Team leaders were Melanie Mokol, 11, averaging 14.1 pts. per game, while Sara Sekula, 10, and Julie Makely, 10, consistently helped out the team with double-digit scoring. Some of the girls were lucky enough to move up to varsity come post-season to fill out the sectional roster. Nicole Swisher, 11, Mokol, and Sara Sikich, 10, all earned the rights to these spots along with some playing time through the sectionals.

The freshman A team enjoyed a dominant year as they closed their season with a record of 16-5. Early in their LC careers this team had already grown accustomed to the tradition here for girls' basketball. They will be the future of the school and will hopefully make their own trip to Market Square Arena some day.

The freshman B team struggled through their season as they finished their year with a record of 3-7. Despite what the record showed, many of their games were close and were decided in the last seconds of the game.

GIRLS SWIMMING REGAINS TITLE

Under water! the LC girls' swimming team entered last season with increased expectations. The team entered with the goal of trying to solidify their place among the elite teams in the whole state. Junior Miranda Muenich entered the season as the areas premier distance swimmer. She did nothing during the season to dispute that. A state qualifier, Muenich excelled in the 200 and 500 meter free style races.

Seniors Carla Ralston and Mandy Tobias were two of the best sprinters during the year. Ralston participated in the 100 and 200-meter free styles and Tobias competed in the 50-meter free style and 100-meter backstroke.

LC began the season with a fourth-place finish at the Kickoff Classic. The Indians trounced the Crown Point Bulldogs, 109-78, to capture their first regular season victory. Ralston won the 100-meter free style with a sleek time of :56.44. Muenich dominated the 200-meter individual medley.

The Lady Indians lost their next meet to Valparaiso at home 95-91. The Vikings were led by their impressive 200-medley relay team of Rae Pera, Katie Shepherd, Becky Terry, and Kelly Cowsert. LC's Tobias shined with her victory in the 50-meter free style. She was clocked at 26.6 seconds.

After splitting their two games against Highland and Chesterton, LC ripped off two straight wins. The Lady Indians spanked Lafayette Jeff 106-80 and also handed the Portage Indians a 114.5-71.5 loss. Junior Kim Clayton won the 500-meter free style with a time of 5:37.38. Ralston was victorious in the 100-meter fly in 1:06.20. Their 200-meter medley team of Brenna Sweeny, Jamie Wolfe, Kari Kopko, and Becky Siminski led Portage.

LC finished first in the LC Invitational and won four out of their next five meets. One of those victims was Terre Haute South who succumbed to the Lady Indians 149-36. That victory was the largest point total of the season for LC.

The Lady Indians finished fourth in the Penn Invitational behind Carmel, Valparaiso, and Penn. After a 114-71 blowout loss to Indianapolis North Central to finish the regular season won their home sectional. LC scored 410 followed by Crown Point 236, Merrillville 216, Lowell 146, and Hobart 134.

LC ended their season with a tenth-place showing. The Carmel Greyhounds won the state title with a score of 419. Ralston was named MVP and Muenich was named winner of the Best Mental Attitude Award. Junior Sarah Hayden won the Sportsmanship award.

ONE STEP AHEAD

Unbelievably determined, the girls' track team opened their indoor season with a bang. After being faced with many hardships in the beginning of the year, the team pulled together to strengthen one another. Labeled as a "team in rebuilding," the Lady Indians were now motivated to make new tracks. Coach Tim Vassar said, "It doesn't matter what you have, it's how you handle what you have."

The team kicked off the outdoor season with many goals in mind. Senior Julia Kaufman said, "We always had fun, and we all got along. That's what made us such a good team." A new addition was added to the coaching staff. Coach Eric Bushong became the new throwing coach. The coaches did a tremendous job in motivating the runners and throwers to go out there and perform their best.

As the tournament series rolled around, the Indians felt very confident going into Sectionals. Entering the infield with chips on their shoulders, the girls persevered through the meet to win their sixth consecutive title. Heading into Regionals, the team had high expectations. The team finished a tight third, while nine individuals qualified in six events for the State Finals.

This season was definitely a season that will be remembered by all. Everyone on the team broke down barriers to accomplish their goals this season. Senior Melissa Wychocki said, "These past four years of track have taught me more than just how to run and hurdle, it's taught me the value of determination, pride, and friendship. Every time I look at my hurdle hickies on my knees, I'll always remember track."

The Lady Indians definitely gave it their all this season. At the close of the season the Indians walked off the track with no regrets in mind.

TOUGH YEAR, GOOD SEASON

Using all their practiced skills, the girls' tennis team opened to a frustrating 3-2 loss to the Highland Trojans, yet they finished their season 5-7. Senior Lexie Morris succumbed to Highland's #1 singles player 6-1, 6-0. Junior Allison DiMichele completed her season with style 6-1, 7-5 win over Kristen Aros. DiMichele proved to be one of the area's hottest players as the season progressed. L.C. senior Michele Parks blasted Tricia Dettlerline 6-2, 6-0. The Lady Indians fell in their first meet of the season to the Portage Indians 3-2. Morris fell to Portage's Liz Cattani 6-3, 6-1 and DiMichele was ousted by Michelle Williams 7-6, 7-3, 6-3. Parks proved to be L.C.'s only singles bright spot by whipping Fenke Kkoese 6-1, 6-0. The doubles team of senior Jessica Wright and junior Angie Michalec outlasted Portages #1 doubles team 6-2, 2-6, 6-2. L.C. rebounded with a 4-1 win against Highland. After Berea defeated Morris in 2 sets, DiMichele and Parks each winning in straight sets. Wright and Michalec also won their doubles match in a thrilling 3 set war 6-3, 4-6, 7-6, (7-5) against April Sterling and Gretchen Schu. After trouncing Bishop Noll 5-0 to raise their record to 2-1, L.C. stumbled to lose their next five meets to the Valparaiso Vikings, Munster Mustangs, Merrillville Pirates, Chesterton Trojans, and Andean 59'ers. Despite their tumultuous midseason, L.C. found a way to win their last 3 meets by a combined score of 14-1 against the Hobart Brickies, Whiting Oilers, and East Chicago Central Cardinals. Wright was named winner of the varsity mental attitude award and Nelson was given the varsity's coach's award.

HEY, BATTER, BATTER, BATTER

Unavoidable losses and the pouring rain brought the season to a slow start. After a 0-5 start, the Lady Indians ripped off eight straight wins, defeating Lowell 5-3 at home in the rematch of last season's stunning playoff loss. After LC took a 2-0 lead, Lowell enjoyed an RBI single followed by a double to drive in two runs. Down 3-2 opening the third, LC responded with three runs. Laura Smith, 11, then retired the next 14 batters, including five strike-outs. She finished the game with 11 K's and chipped in with her double.

Having lost early in the season to rival Munster 1-0, LC was reminded of that contest one year ago, which they had won by the same score. But the Indians proceeded to shut out a pair of Lafayette teams during a rainy double-header at home. The first victim was Harrison who fell 7-0. Katie Imborek, 12, electrified the crowd with a grand slam, and Smith pitched five flawless innings.

At a night game LC squeezed out a 1-0 win against Jefferson. Smith drove in Lauren Hayes, 10, in the eighth inning under a steady downpour.

LC's non-conference schedule pitting them against Penn saw LC trounce Penn 6-0 with Smith striking out eight. Dawn Linvill, 12, offered two hits and a pair of RBIs, while Nicole Gericke, 10, enjoyed a triple in the sixth.

Late contests against Highland, Merrillville, and Bishop Noll were all rained out. Sectional play began June 1, with LC matched against Griffith. LC had a successful game with a final score of 6-2, another victory. Later, LC played Munster, who also suffered a loss to the Indians. At the end of the week, LC enjoyed another victory, this time against Merrillville, with an 8-1 win, bringing home the championship.

After the Sectional win, the varsity team prepared for the Griffith Regional against Clark. The game was scheduled for June 9, but was postponed due to rain. Expectations ran high for another victory to add to the 26-5-1 record. The Lady Indians put up a hard fight in hopes of getting past semi-state to state.

SUCCESS FOR JV SOFTBALL

Understanding LC's recent dominance in softball throughout the region can be attributed to their stellar junior varsity program. This season, under the tutelage of head coach Mr. Keith Hauber, the JV softball team compiled a 14-7 record. Hauber has established a stellar reputation of developing talent for the varsity level.

To say the opening win against the East Chicago Central Cardinals was impressive would be a true overstatement. The Lady Indians torched them 27-0 in a game that would make any Cardinal fan cringe. They followed that with an 11-1 win versus the Bishop Noll Warriors.

We then fell to Crown Point 4-3 before winning their next six games highlighted by a 1-0 win over the Penn Kingsmen. The Lady Indians thanked their formidable pitching for the run. Becca Laird (6-3) came up huge in their winning streak. She finished the season with a 1.48 ERA and a Kerry Wood-like 48 strikeouts. Kari Lukasik (3-3) pitched 49 innings and compiled an ERA of 1.71. Samantha Colella (5-1) was an ace on the mound by striking out 33 in only 36 innings pitched.

The Lady Indians stumbled against Lowell 11-1 and lost a heartbreaking 13-inning game to the Griffith Panthers. After another loss to Munster dropped their record 8-4, we responded with wins over the Highland Trojans and Bishop Noll again by a combined score of 17-2. A big reason for the rebound was the hitting of Laura Carlascio and Sara Sekula. Carlascio concluded her season batting .403 and added six RBIs. Sekula hit .275 and drove in eleven runs. She also added a pair of triples.

After a tough 2-1 defeat to Griffith, loss finished their year winning four out of their last six games.

Diandra Hyman, 12, Alberta E. Crowe Star of Tomorrow Award winner, plans to attend school on a bowling scholarship.

John Schneider, 10, jumps a double-table-double on his way to a first-place trophy, also giving his team a first-place trophy.

LEAPING TO NEW LEVELS

Undefined bounds of gravity didn't stop John Schneider, 10, from doing the intense sport of BMX racing. He was performing a double - table - double on his way to a first-place trophy.

Yo-Yo's popped up all over the place and students found new tricks to do with them. Ryan Phelps, 9, always practiced and became quite good at it. Ryan showed his ability to make a confederate flag with the string while it was still spinning.

Students found all kinds of sports to play to occupy their time. Many LC kids played biddy ball against people their age. Students took these games personally, like Mike Hadt, who said that his team made it to the championship game and his coach nor half of his team showed up. Some might take the forfeit harder than others. Outside sports was for some a way of life. To Diandra Hyman bowling was a part of her life. She was awarded the Alberta E. Crowe Star of Tomorrow Award. This very prestigious award is given to one junior female bowler throughout the nation. For whatever reason students enjoyed playing sports outside of school and looked forward to see what could be accomplished next.

HEAR THE VICTORY CALL

Using their carefully practiced skills, the Westlake Indians dominated the court again this season, sweeping over the competition in the state volleyball game.

Ms. Cindy DeYoung served as the Westlake Indians volleyball and basketball coach with Karen McCarthy, who was voted Westlake coach of the year in the first district. DeYoung said, "The kids playing volleyball learned to work together as a team. They really began to understand the importance of team work."

DeYoung said that basketball season was a learning experience as well as a fun experience for the kids. She said, "We had many new players this year, which made a great opportunity for them to get to know new people and learn more about the game. They all love basketball."

The Westlake Indians' total program was filled with many beneficial and educational activities. Ms. Andrea Rodovich said, "We did a lot of fun things this past year. In the fall we helped with the food drive. As you can tell, the Westlake Indians had a lot of good times this year while they were learning."

Students are at their marks and ready to race. After track and field sectionals, students were ready for state.

Josh McCrary, 11, and teammates dive for the ball during one of the stages towards volleyball state championship.

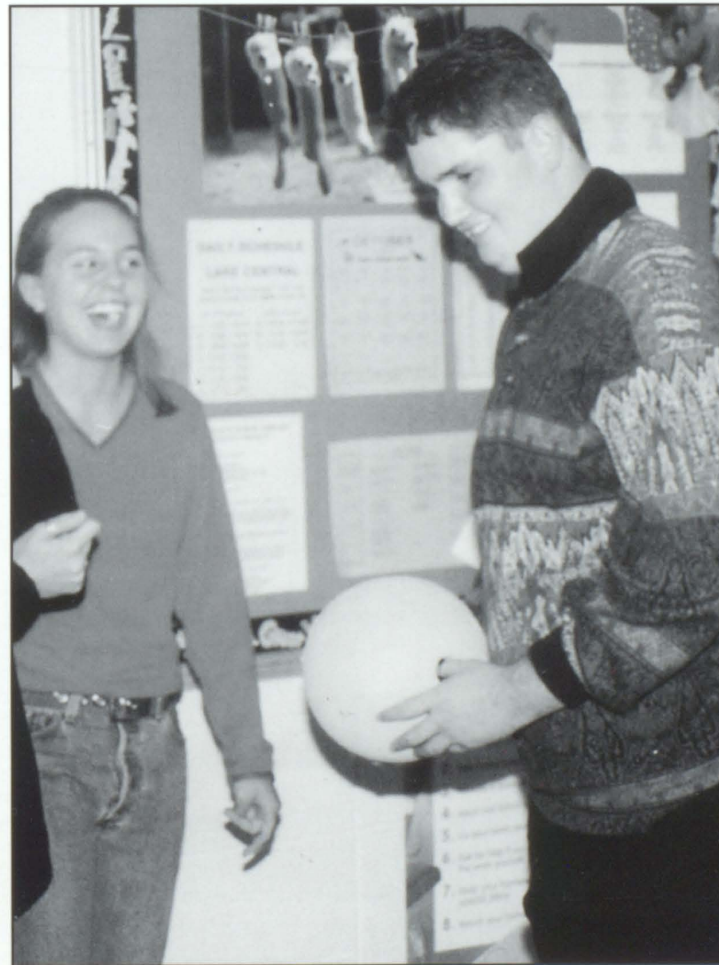

Eddie Higareda, 11, practices his swing before he goes up to bat. In addition to competitions, students enjoyed playing other sports.

Melissa Frye, 11, makes sure everyone is doing her job. Students learned learned cooperation in addition to leadership skills.

Laura Wolf, 10, helps fill the pop machines with bottled water. Students tried hard to help out around the school and the community.

Laura Wolf, 10, cheers on fellow teammates playing volleyball. Every person on the team displayed good sportsmanship and exceptional ability.

Charlie Scanlon, 11, jokes around with others while practicing his catching abilities. Special balls were used to let him sense where they were.

IN THE HEADLINES

Undoubtedly, the events in the world played a major role in students' lives.

Teens supported music artists such as Fiona Apple, Hanson, and Dave Matthews Band. Movie popularity over "Titanic," "As Good As It Gets," and "LA Confidential" stormed through the school. With so much happening inside LC, how did students keep up with the world outside?

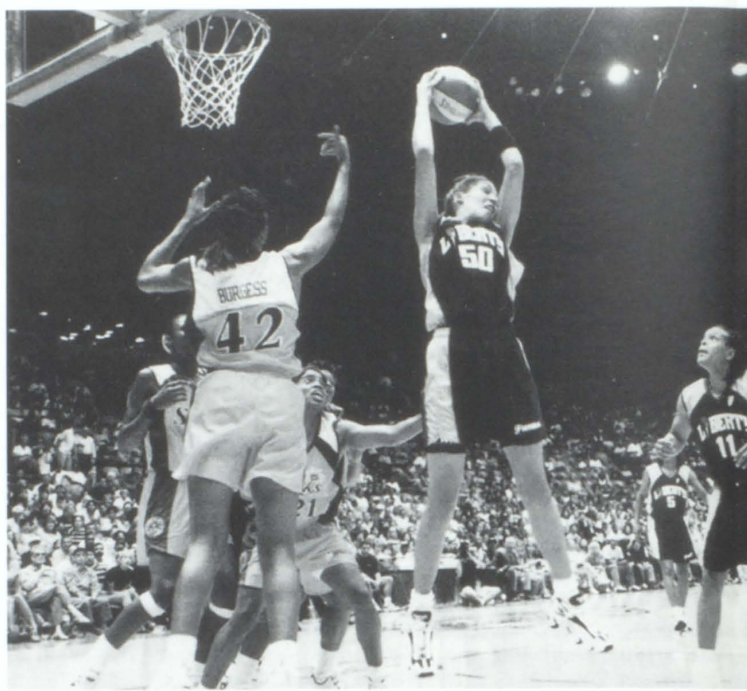

Classes such as Current Events helped some students experience the news at school. Foreign students at LC agree that Mr. Clark's class was useful to learn about the world. "I think that he knows very much, and he tries to tell everyone what he knows. Everybody loves him," said Katharina Noack, Germany. LC students agreed.

Others learned of the deaths of Diana, Princess of Wales, and Mother Teresa on the nightly news. Controversial events in Washington, D.C. about the President were discussed, while Chelsea Clinton left the White House to head for Stanford University. Top music hits and movie news were broadcast over car radios, proving journalism to be vital in students' lives.

Students followed the Women's National Basketball Association (WNBA) in its first season, the events leading up to the World Series, and the competition between teams and commercial companies during Super Bowl XXXII in national periodicals. News bulletins trumpeting new discoveries in space and on Mars also sent chills down spines. New technology impressed some, while others preferred to remain more primitive. With better and better computers, weeks-old models quickly became outdated and obsolete. Students faced these academic problems while trying to learn about the nation and world. Somehow, teens always found time to update stories which interested them.

However students learned about the tragedies and comedies of the year, they learned important lessons about life and the world. Taking every day as it came, students waited to see what was next.

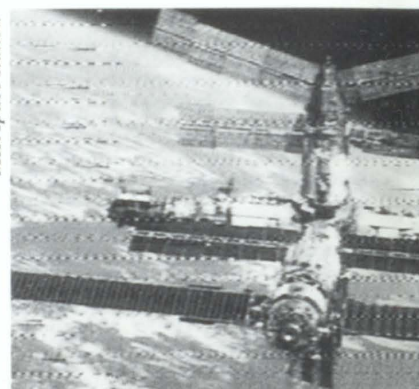

The WNBA, Womens National Basketball Association, finished its first season with a bang. The 1997 league, made of eight teams, expected to increase to ten in 1998 with new teams from Detroit and Washington, D.C.

Kate Winslet, James Cameron, and Leonardo DiCaprio at the Golden Globe Awards. "Titanic" won for best movie of the year.

Mother Teresa dedicated her life to helping the poor and sick everywhere. She founded the Missionaries of Charity, a Roman Catholic convent in Calcutta, India. She died there September 5, 1997, at age 87.

The Clintons were finally split apart by the departure of their daughter, Chelsea, who went to Stanford University in Palo Alto, California. Other questions concerning the President's activities with interns at the White House also stood in the spotlight.

Diana, Princess of Wales, left behind a legacy of compassion and love in Britain. More than a million flower bouquets were left beside the royal palaces at the time of her funeral.

LOCAL NEWS

School Out for 5 Days

AROUND HERE

Unfortunately, at the open of the school year, students were greeted by news that the cafeteria would not be selling pop. Michelle Myers, 11, said, "I was mad when I found out that they weren't going to sell pop this year, but, now I bring my own, so I'm happy again." Most students were able to part with their caffeine addiction during school hours. However, there were rumors of an underground black market that was selling pop. None of these rumors were proven to be true.

Road construction and backed up traffic posed a definite problem to students. "It seems like there is construction everywhere I go lately. I hate it because half of the time I have to detour and I end up getting lost or running late," said Beth Langton, 11. The opening of the new and improved 77th Ave. gave many an alternative to the everyday hassle of Rt. 41.

The everyday low price of $3.50 for students at Showplace 16 Theatre was raised to $4.50. Many were shocked when the prices raised, however, their disappointment was short lived. Nikki Ladd, 11, said, "I was kind of upset, but their prices were still low, so I've learned to live with it."

Michelle Pickles, 9, became LC's first girl hockey player. Many of her fellow students came out to support her. "I'm glad we have a girl on our hockey team this year. She's really good, and we are all proud of her," said Debbie Freeland, 9.

Due to the ever antagonizing El Nino, Indiana was blessed with one of our worst snow storms ever. School was canceled for five days straight, and many were trapped in their houses with no heat, or electricity. "I was stuck in my house with no power for three days. My mom had to boil water in the kitchen to keep us warm," said Genny Ryann, 11.

With all of the interesting and exciting news floating around LC, many find themselves overwhelmed with entertainment. And, as the school year passed by, many found themselves reminding each other... it could only happen at LC!

THIS IS IT ♦ ♦ ♦ our closing

Unless you were here, a part of it, you would have difficulty understanding the impact of the entire school year. Imagine the anticipation... more than a year ago as seniors of 1997 donned caps and gown and pranced through the hallways in proud mortarboards, already juniors were looking ahead to the fall, to their senior year. At middle school sites eighth graders could barely make summer plans for the big thought- "Next year to high school! Will I ever find my way around?" Freshmen could not believe how quickly their year had passed. Faculty, with the knowing assurance of the experienced, tried to keep things on an even keel, understanding that anticipation alone would not ensure the future.

Through all the anticipation came the realization that today controls the future. For the self-assured, the direction-oriented, today became the ultimate goal. Today became the insurance policy, setting goals, maintaining momentum, seeing the light at the end of the tunnel.

Yes, today and these final pages offer an indication of what you will see next. No time can be wasted; no values abandoned; but also nothing taken away from the excitement and the fulfillment of forever wondering, planning, and anticipating exactly what we might see next.

Because of You . . .

It's hard to believe we're sitting here after graduating from high school writing our last copy for Quiver. It seems like just yesterday we were sitting at Manchester College at the editor camp we went to in the summer. It all started there.... Almost everything in this book reflects the spark of creativity that was ignited that week in July.

There are so many people who helped in making this book one of the best ever. The entire Quiver staff did a wonderful job. So those of you who are actually reading this—go ahead and find those people in the picture and give them a pat on the back. For without them, and Mrs. Hewlett there would be nothing to call Quiver.

A great big thanks to "scary" Larry who would give his right foot for us. Thanks for fixing our computers and being patient with all of those division pages. You're the best! We've had so much fun with Julie, Megan, Beth, and Stephanie. Oh yeah, Megan, thanks for running all over the school and getting all those quotes for us and never complaining about it. Always keep that positive attitude—your smile is contagious.

Kyle and Adam, what can we say? We survived two Quiver classes together. We should get a reward just for that. We still don't know how you guys survived with an almost all girls class.

Stephanie and Tom, what can we say to the two who spent the most time in the darkroom. Thanks for printing oodles of pictures under those stressful, but yet calm Quiver deadlines. But don't worry, we know what you two were really doing in the darkroom.

And of course, we can't forget you, Jessica—the one who went through all of the yearbook pages and indexed them. We will always be amazed on how you conquered 80 different programs into one index.

To Denny, thanks for guarding the "Quiver" money like a hawk. And to Kristen for always offering your help to us in a time of need. And to Ed, we've never really expressed how much your help meant to us. Your copy always touched us and the perfection of the senior section was incredible. And Altay, thanks for all of the copy that you wrote. But even though you were on the rival Scout staff, you helped out the enemy in the time of need.

We're going to miss everyone more than they know. It was Quiver that tied everyone together as one. The memories we made will be in our hearts forever. Thanks Quiver!!!
